Council raises room tax while dancing around legal pitfalls

By PAUL WOLF

AS THE Carmel City Council gave final approval to a one-half percent room tax increase, Mayor Ken White was full of metaphors.

The council, he said, was "struggling through a legal web." Moreover, he said, it "had handcuffs on" and "was trying to keep clean."

Livingston casts sole dissenting vote on increase

In short, members were trying to stay out of hot water, to use another metaphor.

Voting 4-1, with Councilwoman Barbara Livingston dissenting, the council agreed to bring in about $140,000 a year in new revenues by increasing the motel tax from 10 to 10.5 percent.

The expressed aim is to direct about the same sum each year to the Carmel Business Association, which is preparing to redouble destination marketing to boost the slack tourist trade.

Council members, along with a wide spectrum of business and hostelry officials, including the Carmel Innkeepers Association, believe aggressive measures must be taken to reclaim the "market share" of visitors.

The vote Tuesday was a final action, as the city council approved the increase

SPECIAL REPORT: BUDGET AX LOOMS

Region braces for big cuts

By PAUL WOLF

TO REP. Sam Farr, D-Carmel, it's "the next 100 days" that matter the most, that provoke the most apprehension.

While he has some basis for pointing fingers at the Republicans who control both houses of Congress, he is well-aware that Washington — current partisan battles aside — is moving inexorably toward further deficit reduction.

Whatever the specifics, federal spending will shrink substantially next year, and Farr expects his 17th Congressional District, which includes all of Monterey County, to feel the effects immediately.

"People don't realize that the 'Contract with America' has a lot of things in it that won't be good for Carmel and this whole area," Farr told The Pine Cone.

With 100 days behind it and several new pieces of House legislation now in hand, the 10-part Republican plank shows promise of being largely fulfilled.

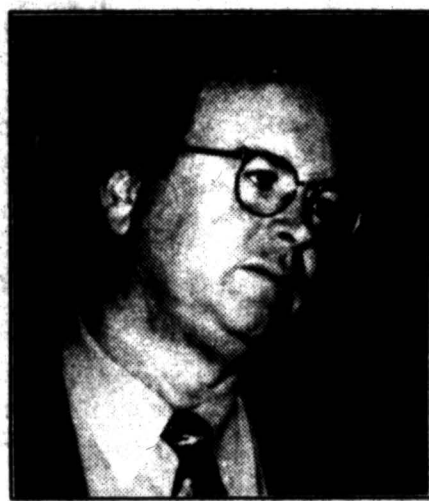

"We will lose federal dollars to the schools, counties, special districts," Farr explained. "As of yet, we don't know exactly what will be the fallout. My concern remains: Are the cuts going to be responsible?"

Broad impacts

While Farr is eagerly informing the media and his constituents that profound changes are on the way, he is not the only one taking action:

Financial officers at a variety of public agencies are leaving some question marks in their books; the president of the new university at Fort Ord is already brainstorming on "contingency plans," should federal money for the base conversion dry up; and officials with the National Marine Sanctuary are wondering about the fate of their proud new distinction.

While the popular battle cries continue to be "less government" and "living within our means," there are only estimations about how services and programs will be affected at the regional and county levels.

"People don't realize that the 'Contract with America' has a lot of things in it that won't be good for Carmel and this whole area."

With Republican House Speaker Newt Gingrich pushing for a balanced federal budget in seven years, Farr's office has been able to make some rough calculations: Over that span of time, Monterey County could lose as much as $1.7 billion in federal funds now channeled to a myriad of functions.

The first drafts of the federal budget begin coming out of committees this month, making the second 100 days in many ways more significant than the first.

"The squeeze on...programs will be fierce," Farr said. "More than that, the effect on individuals will be tremendous as program after program shrinks, disappears or simply lacks the resources to serve its constituency."

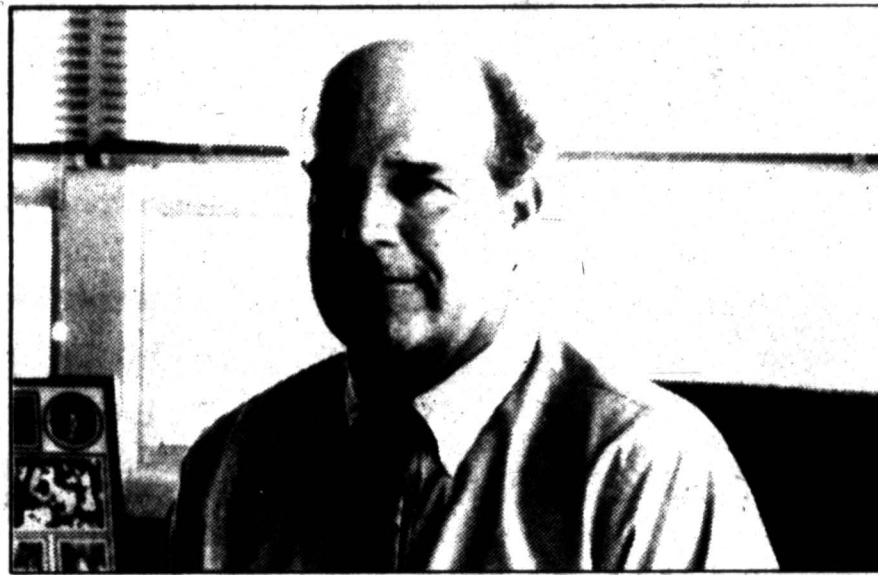

Price, not value

Of his Washington colleagues, Farr says, they are more adept these days at thinking in terms of "price rather than value."

Will the one-year-old national marine sanctuary be a case-in-point?

To THE DOGS? CUSD ponders use of drug-sniffing canines on campus

By SUSAN BECK

THE PERIODIC use of canines to search for drugs and alcohol on three Carmel campuses may soon become standard procedure.

A proposal to use trained dogs at Carmel High School, Carmel Valley High School and Carmel Middle School to "sniff out" illegal substances in school lockers, desks, bags, or vehicles will be discussed at the May 11 Carmel Unified School District Board of Education (CUSD) meeting.

A public hearing on the agenda item is scheduled for 7 p.m. next Thursday at the Tularcitos Elementary School, 35 Ford Road, Carmel Valley Village.

School district representatives, including psychologists, counselors, a nurse, plus a member of CASA — Community Against Substance Abuse — came up with the idea in an effort to provide a healthier learning environment for the three schools' 1,150 students, according to Vance Baldwin, CUSD superintendent.

"This is just one little aspect of a comprehensive program," said Baldwin, who will retire this summer. "We've done a wide variety of things

Bridge opening could be imminent

By JOHN DETRO and PAUL WOLF

UNCONFIRMED REPORTS Wednesday offered promise that the new Carmel River Bridge could be open as early as Friday. But conflicting statements suggest that opening may be several days later, The Pine Cone has learned.

Construction workers on the bridge project spread the word informally Wednesday that the opening could happen Friday.

Formal channels were more cautious and made the time-line somewhat longer.

Respecting Gov. Pete Wilson's wish to announce the new span's opening date, Supervisor Sam Karas said "a big celebration for the construction workers" would be held on May 15.

"The official announcement is the governor's to make," Karas told the newspaper Wednesday. "The celebration will be in that immediate area on May 15, and it will honor the construction crew. I think you can figure it out."

Earlier the same afternoon, a prominent project spokesperson in Monterey said Karas was meeting with Caltrans officials concerning the specific opening date.

Speaking from her office in San Luis Obispo before Karas made his statement about the celebration, Caltrans public information officer Danielle Lloyd

Award-winning teacher inspires students with hands-on learning

THERE'S NOTHING PAT Stadille would rather do than teach sixth graders about nature.

Well, almost nothing. There's always that yearning to play major league baseball.

"I really wanted to play center field for the Giants," said the recent recipient of the 1995 Lori Flagg Award for teaching excellence.

According to Stadille's colleagues, the Carmel Middle School life-science teacher would have become a star player if he'd displayed the same skill and team spirit on the playing field that he does in the classroom.

"He's one of the heartbeats of the school," said Scott Rainer, an industrial arts and physical education teacher. "He has an eccentric teaching style. He cap-

Briefly Speaking

Friday: Cosmic collisions explored

ASTRONOMY EDUCATOR Andrew Fraknoi will lecture on "Cosmic Collisions" and the role they have played in the evolution of the solar system and of human life on Earth at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Santa Catalina School Performing Arts Center.

In his lecture, illustrated by images from the Hubble Space Telescope and other large instruments, Fraknoi will explain why cosmic collisions occur and what can be learned from them. He also will examine the odds of the Earth being hit by a large object from space in the future.

Admission is free, but seating is limited to adults and children over 12. Reservations: 655-9310.

Saturday: Homeless gain from sale

ALL SAINTS' Episcopal Church will hold its annual rummage sale from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday in the Parish Hall, Ninth and Dolores in Carmel.

Items for sale will include clothing, furniture, jewelry, dishes, toys and silver.

All proceeds from the sale will be used to benefit the homeless on the peninsula and will help provide the funds to purchase the 30,000 pounds of food that All Saints' distributes to needy individuals and families on the peninsula each year.

More information: 625-0944.

Saturday: Women's alliance to rally

A RALLY will be held Saturday in Monterey with the intention of providing women a greater voice in the selection of presidential candidates for 1996, and to bolster women candidates who are campaigning to be elected in 1995.

The three-hour rally begins at 11 a.m. at Colton Hall in Monterey.

More information: 394-4445.

Saturday: Self-defense classes begin

THE MONTEREY Rape Crisis Center has scheduled its spring self-defense class for women from noon to 4 p.m. on three consecutive Saturdays beginning this Saturday at Chautauqua Hall, Central Avenue and 16th St. in Pacific Grove.

The fee is $45 per person, and scholarships are available.

The course will incorporate the four components of personal defense — awareness, avoidance, verbal techniques and physical techniques.

More information: 373-3955 or 633-2953.

Sunday: MIIS to hear CNN's Sesno

FRANK SESNO, executive editor of Cable News Network's Washington D.C. bureau and host of CNN's Late Edition Sunday talk show, will be the keynote speaker at the Monterey Institute of International Studies' commencement at 1 p.m. Sunday at the Monterey Conference Center.

Sesno previously served as CNN's White House correspondent and has covered numerous significant international stories.

Wednesday: MPC schedules job fair

JOB FAIR and Career Day will be held from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday in the College Center at Monterey Peninsula College.

More than 30 area employers are expected to participate in the Job Fair, which is sponsored by MPC and the Employment Development Department. Persons attending the event will have an opportunity to gather information on educational and employment opportunities in the area.

More information: 646-4195.

Wednesday: Jane Goodall to speak

ANIMAL BEHAVIORIST Jane Goodall will speak from 2 to 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Monterey Bay Aquarium, Cannery Row, Monterey.

Goodall's lecture and slide presentation on her 35 years of research on chimpanzee behavior, is a fund raiser for both the Jane Goodall Institute and Friends of the Sea Otter.

Ticket information: 373-2747.

Water board dispute boils

■ Haddad slams Fran Farina with charge that she has a conflict of interest by living on the Carmel River, but Farina cries foul.

By PAUL WOLF

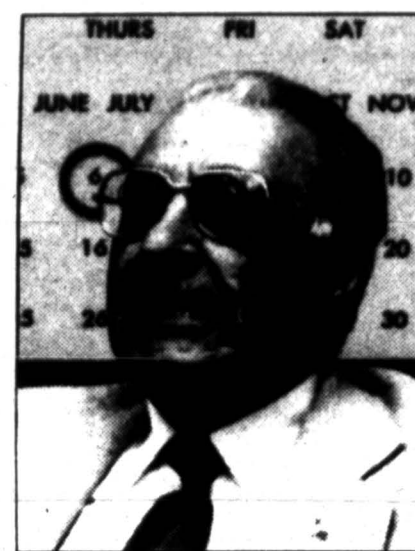

THERE IS a power that automatically comes with an accusation, particularly when it is leveled in a public setting.

No one knows this fact better — and resents it more — than Fran Farina, who chairs the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board.

With the allegation of a conflict of interest on her back, Farina would love to be free of her tireless accuser, fellow director Lou Haddad, and his latest charge that she has an inherent conflict of interest by living on the Carmel River.

But it's not so simple. As the November authorizing vote on the New Los Padres Dam approaches, Haddad doesn't appear ready to let up.

His contention is as follows: Because Farina lives on the Carmel River (a two-acre lot about seven miles from the lagoon), she should excuse herself from voting on the dam and issues relating to the dam because her property could benefit from the project.

Lou Haddad

Farina bristles: "I am not going to be held to a Lou Haddad standard of what constitutes a conflict of interest."

Another standard

Farina has another standard in mind — an opinion from the legal division of the California Fair Political Practices Commission, which clears her of the potential of a legal conflict.

Concerned about the destructive nature of loudly proclaimed allegations, she hopes her defense can receive equal press. Hence, she underscores the key sentence in the FPPC's response, which says:

The fact that your residence is located on the Carmel River is not, standing alone, sufficient to conclude that you have a conflict of interest regarding all matters involving the Carmel River.

The board is on record as supporting the dam 6-1. Haddad, the lone dissenter, suggested the very appearance of a conflict should be enough to sway the Quality inspires Rayne lease deal

■ Old European maker of fine china to remodel downtown store.

By JOHN DETRO

HAVING ANNOUNCED their retirement from Carmel's business life, those Rayne brothers — Derek and Clive — still insist upon quality in the downtown area.

The family's choice property (where Derek Rayne, Ltd., has defined sartorial standards since 1944) was subdivided in two for leasing.

"We don't know who'll take one half," Clive said this week with obvious delight, "but the other half will house a branch of Villeroy and Boch — the world's largest maker of fine china along with ceramics and crystal products."

The lease arrangement "represents a mutual marriage and just fell together very pleasantly," Clive said. Commercial realtor Don Bowen of Carmel served as agent.

"We're being careful," Clive said. "We love Carmel. We want beautiful stores where our store has been — in keeping with the old village. Villeroy and Boch fills the bill wonderfully well."

Established more than 250 years ago in Europe, Villeroy and Boch enjoys a worldwide reputation and has its headquarters in Mettlach, Germany, and Luxembourg. The firm, Clive noted, is still run by direct descendants of the founding family.

Coming on June 1

"The United States division has been operating for more than 26 years and is based in New York," he added. "They'll come in on June 1 for remodeling. The opening targets the Fourth of July weekend."

As Bowen spoke with hand-picked and substantial East Coast companies, Clive said of Villeroy and Boch:

Flood fundraiser rings up more than $500,000

Monterey County Kiwanians were telephone volunteers on April 26, when the Flood Relief 95 Telethon at Monterey Conference Center raised in excess of $500,000 for distribution to victims of rain-swollen rivers. KSBV-TV broadcast the stellar event which had Clint Eastwood and John Madden as honorary co-chairs. As of now, untallied pledges were still arriving in the mail. Sheriff's Log NEIGHBORS CARE about neighbors. So here's a rundown on activity logged by Monterey County Sheriff's Department from Monday, April 24, through Monday, May 1.

MONDAY, APRIL 24

- Carmel: A man reported getting "a strange telephone call" from his 10-year-old daughter.
- Carmel: A service station cashier reported a "gas skip." Described fully, the auto was registered to a man from Rancho Cordova, near Sacramento. "He offered his credit card twice to the cashier, but it was refused because he was to pay after the vehicle was filled." Total: $11.94.
- Carmel Valley: A man reported that his 19-year-old son "damaged some items in the house the previous night."

TUESDAY, APRIL 25

- Carmel: Receiving clerk at a large drug store in a shopping center reported finding two stripped bicycle frames in the dumpster behind the business — "Trek and Scott Montana."
- Carmel Highlands: A woman reported being concerned about her tenant who "lived with another tenant that's being evicted." Officers contacted the first (female) tenant by phone. "She said she was afraid of the second tenant (male) for future retaliation against her."
- Carmel Valley: A man reported finding his male neighbor deceased. "Appeared to be natural causes."
- Carmel Valley: A man reported finding the door to the Goodwill trailer had been forced open. Items taken. "Occurred at Mid Valley."

- Carmel Valley: A woman and man were involved in a domestic dispute. "Both participated. Fight resulted in no injuries. He left the residence for the night; neither wished to press charges."
- Carmel Valley: A local woman reported finding a set of keys in the Carmel River near Porter's Pool. "Keys in evidence."
- Carmel Valley: The manager of a lodge reported that two suspects — a woman and man — tried to steal a chaise lounge from the pool area. "They were last seen leaving in a faded blue, older Honda Civic on Carmel Valley Road."
- Pebble Beach: A man reported finding "new-appearing scratches on his front door about a month ago," and what he thought was a shoe print on a rear door, with the door open on April 21. "Nothing known to be disturbed in the house. No sign on the rear door that the formerly unnoticed mark was connected with the door being open. The lock and door jamb — undamaged."

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26

- Carmel: A woman visiting here from Goleta reported rescuing a dog that was chained to a Ford flatbed (California license number given) parked at Lower Trail and Carpenter. "Dog was left without food and water food two days. She advised that she would contact Animal Control in the morning."
- Carmel: The executive director of a care provider establishment reported a former employee taking jewelry from a client. "The former provider, a woman from Hollister, cannot be found."

- Carmel: A woman reported that another woman bought a house from her "and then backed out of the deal just as escrow was closing — and after causing much damage to the place."
- Carmel Valley: A 46-year-old man and a teen-aged male had an argument. The man thought that the other had been tampering with his vehicle.
- Carmel Valley: A woman reported that she and her husband were having an argument at her sister's house. "All was over before officers got there."
- Carmel Valley: A woman reported finding "boards with nails in them on CV Airport property across from her home."
- Pebble Beach: A San Rafael woman reported having lost her black leather wallet at a lodge some time between last Friday night and Sunday. "The estimated loss exceeds $850."

THURSDAY, APRIL 27

- Carmel: A local man reported getting "harassing phone calls" from his ex-landlord.
- Carmel: A man reported his $300 mountain bike stolen from his driveway. "It's a Mongoose (Sycamore model) and blue in color. No suspect information."
- Carmel Valley: "A Pacific Grove man was arrested on Esqueline near Rosie's for public intoxication."

FRIDAY, APRIL 28

- Carmel: Officer observed the rear window of a store open. "Owner came to the shopping center and closed it."
- Carmel: Vehicle pursuit of a blue Toyota 4x4 driven by a man from Huntington Beach. "Vehicle ran a red light north of Highway 1 at the Carmel River Bridge, then a red at Highway 1 and Rio. Vehicle yielded north of Carmel Valley Road, then took off as deputies approached. Pursuit terminated by sheriff's office in Capitola, and taken over by Santa Cruz CHP. Vehicle finally stopped in a dead end street in City of Santa Cruz."
- Carmel: Cashier at a pizza parlor in a shopping center reported the theft of money from that business. Suspected was an employee (name given). Be-on-the-lookout bulletin issued.

• Carmel: Business owner in a shopping center reported the theft of some plants from his place.

- Carmel: A school district secretary reported that a former district employee came to the superintendent's office and complained about a district policy "in a loud and boisterous manner."
- Carmel Valley: A man reported losing his wallet, address book and leather day planner on Carmel Valley Road near his driveway. "He has since been notified that a check was cashed in Salinas."
- Carmel Valley: A woman reported having a problem with a tree service. "The crew was cutting a large dead tree on the property next door, and large rounds of wood were falling onto her driveway. Matter was settled."
- Carmel Valley: An 18-year-old local male was stopped for erratic driving. CHP responded and took him into custody for DUI.

• Carmel Valley: A woman reported her 14-year-old granddaughter involved in a disturbance with four other female juveniles. "The four were challenging the granddaughter to fight in the vacant lot next to a liquor store."

• Carmel Valley: A woman reported her $150 bicycle missing from the carport behind her unit. "No suspect information."

• Carmel Valley: A man from Fremont was detained at a ranch for hunting and trespassing. "He was toting an AR-15 and several full clips of ammo. These were confiscated; he was cited and released."

• Carmel Valley: "A woman was arrested for DUI while pulling into her driveway."

• Pebble Beach: A man reported having received a phone call from a "Keith," who requested a $100 donation "for paralyzed veterans." The reporting party got suspicious when the caller asked him to send the money to an address in Phoenix, and mispronounced "suite." He pronounced it "suit."

SATURDAY, APRIL 29

- Carmel: A local man was cited for possession of less than an ounce of marijuana.
- Carmel: A woman reported having problems with her male housemate.

Room tax hike OKd, but discussion of new revenue tabled until June tentatively at its April 4 meeting. The hike will go into effect with the start of the new fiscal year July 1.

"Down the road, this is going to pay off," said Councilman Bob Fischer before the tax hike was approved.

Likewise, Toni Jepson, executive director of the Carmel Business Association, called the plan "an investment that the industry is willing to pay for — for your (the council's) sake and for the sake of the residents of Carmel."

But, according to City Attorney Don Freeman, there could be no discussion about how precisely that tax increase would be an "investment."

Freeman cautioned both members of the public and the council about making any comments on the plan to fund a marketing program because, as he pointed out, room tax revenues cannot be earmarked without voter approval.

In other words, the transient-occupancy tax (TOT) increase was one matter; the CBA marketing program was another, to be saved for another evening.

The city's proposed multi-year contract with the CBA will come before the city council as part of a special budget meeting June 8.

The fact that there could be no formal link between the two items led to expressions of frustration, with resident Linda

Anderson saying, "Everyone in this room knows what this tax is going to be used for — it quacks and we can't say it's a duck?"

Casting the lone dissenting vote, Livingston said the council put itself "in a very peculiar situation" by raising money for the general fund with only a tacit agreement of what it is going to be used for.

Livingston said she would have liked to have been informed about other alternatives for using new TOT revenues, but the topic was closed.

"I am aware of what is going on," she lamented, "but I am not supposed to know what is going on."

White acknowledged the awkwardness of the action before the council, but he stressed the urgency of helping the hospitality industry: "We are trying to solve a problem the best way that we know how."

Stadille: The great outdoors is best classroom for life sciences

tures the student's interests."

Stadille strives to get his students interested in some aspect of science and to develop a curiosity about life in general. He also teaches them that hard work can be fun and rewarding.

"I put them through the wringer," the 31-year-old Salinas native said.

Emphasizing a hands-on approach, Stadille's students learn about dissecting, bug collecting, bird watching, identifying plants and cataloguing flora and fauna.

"I'm not into computers," he said during a class break. "I like wildlife. I'm into exposing kids to nature. We work outside about 90 percent of the time. I teach a lot of creepy, crawly subjects that appeal to sixth-grade students. Forget butterflies. Black widows and parasites really get their attention."

Eccentric style

Two seventh-grade TAs (teaching assistants) quietly playing cards in Stadille's otherwise empty classroom affirmed his teaching style.

"I liked the bugs and spiders best," Kyle Evans said. "We were outside a lot. That was great."

David Perryman remembered a test about birds: "It was the hardest test. The class was hard. But it was the funnest class."

After graduating from the University of California, Berkeley in 1987, Stadille landed his first teaching position at Carmel Middle School.

"I got lucky," the zoology major said. "I like it here because I can focus on teaching and not on patrolling the classroom. The kids who come here are basically interested in learning, and their parents are very supportive."

Along with teaching, Stadille also is responsible for creating activities for the students during the lunch hour, such as movies, basketball tournaments and chess games.

"I get a lot of support from the faculty," he said. "I could not do it without them."

While Stadille is honored to be recognized for his accomplishments at Carmel Middle School, he attributes his success to the "free rein" Principal Karl Pallastrini has given him, and to the science department staff.

"Pat's a natural," Pallastrini said. "He's one of the best teachers I've encountered during the 10 years I've been here. My style is to hire people who are talented and then turn them loose."

Team player

Being singled out for the Lori Flag Award is "kind of weird," said Stadille, who believes teaching is a team effort and that every member of the CMS faculty is "very deserving."

Eighth grade science teacher Craig Hohenberger, Stadille's "mentor," said: "I feel very fortunate to have Pat as a colleague."

Hohenberger and Stadille were hired at the same time and together organized the school's first softball league.

"We both agree that the kids come first," Hohenberger said. "Fun's at the forefront, but not at the expense of learning. I have a lot of respect for Pat. He's extremely dedicated to teaching. He eats, sleeps and breathes ways to share his knowledge and interest his students in science. He's the perfect sixth-grade science teacher."

For Stadille, there's only one drawback to his job: He sometimes experiences a "hollow feeling" when the students continue on to high school.

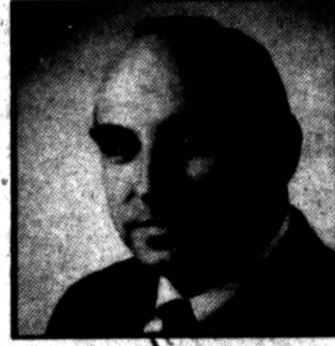

"The kids make it a fun job," he said. "Kids are fun people. They're nice and they have a lot of energy. They keep you on your toes. When the students are in high school, they will forget all of the facts I taught them in class. But they will remember the details about parasites."

Huckleberry Hill 'tree-thinning' draws mixed response

■ Officials seek to minimize aesthetic impact while protecting properties from another fire.

By PAUL WOLF

HER WORDS made it clear she takes seriously the concerns about the "tree-thinning" project near Highway 68.

"Some people are going to be aghast when they see the results," remarked Janice O'Brien, a director on the Pebble Beach Community Services District (PBCSD), referring to the removal of trees and brush at the top of Huckleberry Hill, where the famous Pebble Beach fire did so much damage eight years ago.

Tree-thinning work began Monday and will continue for two to four weeks. Crews will be creating a 50-foot "buffer zone" between Highway 68 and Sunridge Road along Los Altos Drive, located about a quarter mile from Highway 1.

To motorists driving downhill toward Pacific Grove, the area in question is seen off to the left of the highway just passed the first overpass.

The site is currently covered by "almost a carpet" of thick growth of Monterey pine seedlings that have "regenerated profusely" after the 1987 fire, which destroyed dozens of homes, according to Richard Andrews, PBCSD general manager.

In the first phase of work, the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection will help the company "reduce overcrowding of seedlings and saplings" and create a slow-burning buffer area.

The current "tree density" is estimated at 10,000 trees, seedlings and "stems" per acre. The goal is to clear out the area to accommodate the healthiest trees at 17 to 18 feet apart, leaving a low level of ground vegetation.

"There will be enough trees left that the area will not look like an eyesore," Andrews said.

O'Brien, like her board colleagues, supports the project, but admits they are caught "between a rock and a hard place." She explains: "We are concerned about protecting the forest, but our first priority has to be preventing fires."

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors has approved fire-hazard abatement work.

In the second phase of the program, which will begin next fall, an additional 100-foot area farther down the hill will be thinned to an average of 300 trees per acre.

Justifiable fire concerns aside, some peninsula residents are less than happy with the project. "I just think it is a mistake," said Randy Fry, Pacific Grove resident who owns property in Pebble Beach. "I think it will make fire conditions worse. The brush will grow and you are going to get erosion problems."

David Dilworth, who chairs the Forest Protection Committee of the local Sierra Club chapter, said the public has not been well-informed about the project.

"It has not been on the public's radar and it should have been," said Dilworth, who opposed the plan when it was presented in an earlier version.

Meanwhile, Linda Smith, a member of the Monterey Forest Watch, called the project, which incorporates Fish & Game conditions, "tolerable" and "a pretty decent compromise." Smith said she is happy with the condition not to remove trees that are taller than 12 inches and not to clear vegetation below 18 inches.

Federal flood relief deadline set for May 11

VICTIMS OF the March floods who seek disaster assistance from the Small Business Administration (SBA) must submit their loan application filings by Thursday, May 11, SBA representative Mike Macrina said Wednesday.

That reminder was issued by Sacramento-based Macrina from his temporary office in the Carmel Valley Community Chapel complex at Paso Hondo and Village Drive.

"I urge applicants to first contact the Federal Emergency Management Administration (FEMA) by calling 1-800-462-9029," Macrina said.

Then, he continued, "give us a call (659-7415) and ask about seeing us. If someone comes in on May 11, that would be fine. We could seek an extension."

The SBA's office hours at the Carmel Valley site are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Federal cuts to affect sanctuary, Fort Ord conversion

Sanctuary Advisory Council, told this newspaper, the environmental cost of not taking steps to protect the bay's resources in the midst of increasing population and use is something the community shouldn't have to find out.

"It is like we have this baby we have been nurturing and getting on its feet, and so it is comparable to starving this child."

Although decision makers in Washington may not know it, the research and educational aspects of the program, if allowed to flourish, will have a profound influence on management policies, Strasser Kauffman said.

Actually, her concerns run much deeper than just the sanctuary program, which is operated under the umbrella of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

"There has been the stated intent to eliminate a number of environmental programs," she said, citing the Clean Water Act, the Water Resources Act and the Coastal Zone Management Act.

Other programs

The expected cuts at the federal level jeopardize many local programs and projects. Here is a brief (and incomplete) look:

■ As it prepares to open next fall with modest student and faculty populations, the new California State University, Monterey Bay, remains completely dependent on the federal government for defense-conversion funds.

"We are going to have to work twice as hard to get half as much money," said

President Peter Smith, noting the state covers only operating expenses. "If our (federal) money were terminated, it would have a serious impact on our rate of development."

The $29 million already received from the federal government is only about one-tenth of what ultimately will be needed to fashion a campus that can support as many as 10,000 students within a decade.

Smith noted that cutting the federal government is always more popular in the abstract than in the particular. "Nobody likes the federal government until it stops planting trees in your own yard, and you realize your yard needed those trees," he said.

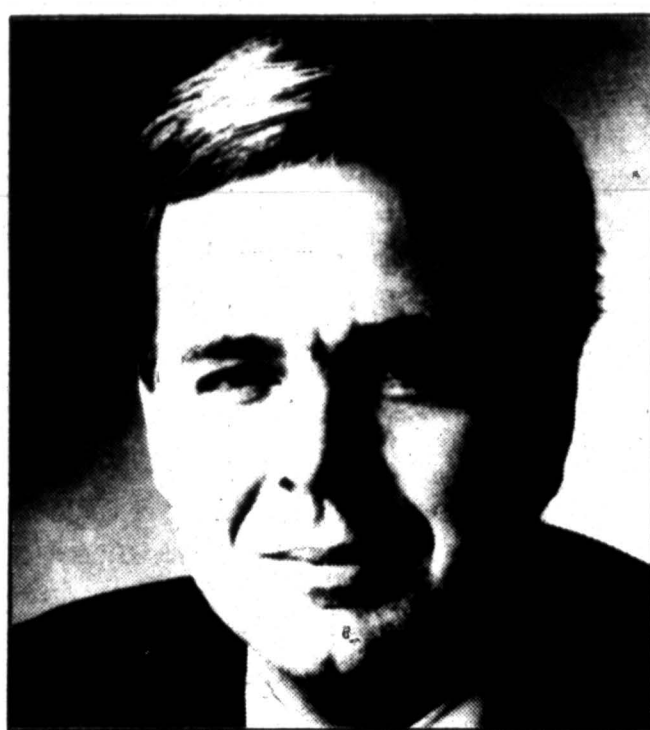

The president is already making "contingency plans," working on ways of getting money from the state government and from public-private partnerships.

He noted that the rate of growth for the university is connected to how quickly the physical environment at Fort Ord can be molded to its new educational function.

The good news, Smith said, is that the timetable for the development of the campus is relatively flexible; the bad news is: If the pace of growth is too slow, "it could deny us the ability to become institutionally viable."

■ Less impact will be felt at the public-school level, but the effects will vary district by district.

According to Judy Long, the Carmel Unified School District's financial officer, the local system will not be badly hit.

'We are going to have to work twice as hard to get half as much money. If our (federal) money were terminated, it would have a serious impact on our rate of development.'

— Peter Smith
President, CSUMB

For starters, it receives only a fraction of its total budget from the feds. For example, of all the actual dollars received in 1993-94 — $14.8 million — only $156,000 came from federal sources, Long said.

About half of the federal money goes to special education programs, "which tend to be underfunded as is," she said.

Other federally financed local school programs surround drug-and-alcohol prevention and vocational education.

■ The impacts on public agencies will be varied, since governments — cities, counties and states — receive federal funds in a variety of ways.

Because federal monies are frequently channeled through the state, many in the public are not aware of their origins. For example, many social services are channeled through the state and implemented by the county.

At other times, federal money is of a one-time nature, as in the case of the disaster relief. This kind of assistance benefits individuals and governments alike.

Even the town of Carmel, which was spared significant flooding this year but experienced moderate storm damage, could be affected by the potential reduction in federal aid. The $250,000 the city shelled out for emergency repairs ordinarily would be reimbursed 90 percent, but city officials are not anticipating nearly so high a return. The reimbursement rules are likely to be changed, according to City Administrator Jere Kersnar.

At the county and state level, rail and transit programs — including Monterey-Salinas Transit — could be affected by federal cuts, according to Joe Lopez, transportation coordinator at the Transportation Agency for Monterey County.

Farr reported that his district stands to lose $10.9 million in highway funds, some of which are needed following the 1989 Loma Prieta Earthquake.

"The Prunedale bypass would simply go unplanned, unfunded and unbuilt, causing who knows how many more deaths at this dangerous intersection."

Many transportation programs, however, are secure because a large portion of federal money comes from the national gas tax revenues, Lopez said.

But he added: Transportation is seriously underfunded by the state already.

Backlash expected

Deficit reduction was viewed as one of the central mandates of the mid-term elections last November. But once the realities are understood, "there could be a backlash — and I predict one," suggested Bruce McPherson, who represents the Monterey Bay area in the state Assembly.

"There will be an adjustment for everybody to make," he said. "Whether at the federal level or the state level, we are not getting the revenues to provide the services we have — it's that simple."

The assemblyman noted that the state frequently serves as "the pass-through agency" for federal programs. "We were $2 billion short last year — we have our own problems. We are not going to be able to make up the difference for whatever is cut from federal spending."

Meanwhile, Farr hopes to keep the lines of communication open with his constituents to learn precisely how the federal cuts will affect his district. Apart from that, there is little the congressman can do, for the changes in Washington are much larger than his power to carry out damage control.

Derek Rayne sellout luring throngs

"The Rayne family chose them from among many desiring the location. We do, after all, have the dual traditions of quality and integrity to maintain."

He stressed that the Raynes "see all the 'suitors' and are being quite selective — so I'm sure the other space will go to a prestige store that's compatible with Carmel's old character."

Villeroy and Boch has only one other store on the West Coast. This is in Orange County, at the posh South Coast Plaza, just north of Newport Beach.

The Grand Retirement Sellout of Derek Rayne, Ltd., has been attracting large crowds. "We anticipate that the store will be empty within weeks," Derek Rayne said.

CUSD may use drug-sniffing dogs

for a number of years. It's just another tool to make sure our campuses are kept drug free."

CUSD Board President Daniel Hightower said the district has developed a number of drug education classes, intervention support groups and parent education programs to address an increased use of drugs and alcohol by students.

"The problem is more blatant than in the past," he said. "There is certainly a perception by teachers, counselors, parents and students that there is too much drug and alcohol use on campus."

Hightower emphasized the board's decision on the proposal would not be made lightly. But he added, "We also don't take the presence of drugs on campus lightly either."

The proposed policy stipulates that only dogs provided and handled by officers of the Monterey County Sheriff's Department would be used to alert school staff members where illegal substances are located on campus, such as in a student's locker.

In that scenario, school district officials would request the student to open his or her locker, whereupon any illegal substances discovered would be seized. The student's parent or guardian would be notified.

Baldwin said an effort would be made to conduct the searches during class periods.

"We are not going to search any students," he said.

"We will use the dogs when the students are not around."

Carmel High School Principal Marie Ishida chose not to comment on the proposal until she spoke with the school's faculty and student body.

Ishida said she planned to meet with CHS teachers late Wednesday afternoon (after The Pine Cone's deadline) and with the students toward the end of the week.

The principal of Carmel Middle School, Carl Pallastrini, said he had a "lot of opinions" about the proposal, but preferred to discuss the issue with faculty members before making a statement.

Blake Fuessenich, Carmel Valley High School principal, said it's a regrettable, but necessary step to get illegal substances off campus.

"It's not to bust anyone," he added. "It's to free the school so learning can take place. The good news is that some people might receive the support and treatment they need."

Hightower said the proposal needs to be discussed thoroughly with members of the community, faculty, parents and students.

"It's not a done deal," he added. "This is an alternative to get drugs off campus. We want to provide a safe and secure environment for the students. We don't want students who are not using drugs or alcohol to feel pressured or exposed to illegal substances."

Despite Baldwin's 38 years of education experience, he never anticipated CUSD would consider using canines on campus as a measure to keep the district's schools drug free.

But he noted: "There are a whole lot of other things I didn't think would happen, either."

School district narrows search for superintendent down to 4

ists early Saturday morning at the district's office in Carmel Valley, according to Daniel Hightower, CUSD board president.

All of the final candidates are currently superintendents and at least one lives on the East Coast.

"Now comes the hard part," Hightower said. "All four candidates are highly qualified and very successful in their districts. They all have the background, skills and track record. It will come down to a personal fit and chemistry between the community, the board and the finalist."

After the interviews, the board and committee members will discuss each finalist. When a consensus is reached, CUSD representatives will arrange to travel to that candidate's district to "actually observe and talk with community members," said Hightower, who expects the new superintendent will be hired by the end of May.

"I am very excited about the prospects for the future of the district," he said. "Any one of these people is going to be real leaders. They are all energetic, visionary and successful."

High expectations

CUSD hired Management Analysis and Planning Associates, a Berkeley-based firm, to search for a new superintendent when Vance Baldwin announced last December that he would resign his post at the end of the school year.

About 75 people had applied for the position by the end of March. The list of eight semifinalists was narrowed to four at a special session last Saturday, according to Hightower.

Based on interviews conducted with CUSD employee groups, administrators and parents, the consulting firm found that the new superintendent would be expected to possess a number of specific characteristics.

For instance, the person who is hired for the position must be able to demonstrate the ability to be a strong leader with knowledge about school reform and have experience in implementing an effective substance abuse program in public schools.

Saturday's Special Olympics provides area competitors a chance to savor their accomplishments.

A 'special' day ahead

"It's an event you have to attend to get the wonderful spirit," she says. "Everybody from age eight upwards gets to compete."

Throughout the year, MSO has sports programs for the mentally retarded — basketball, softball, soccer, bowling, tennis, long-distance running, so on.

"But," Meyers explains, "the Special Olympics is indeed special for all who sign up through schools and agencies — and those who compete as independents. Some don't participate in the year-round sports. And at no cost to the athletes — we have about 300 this year — every Olympics person gets a yearbook and either a medal or ribbon."

"It's great in terms of self-esteem. And this carries over into school, the work place, social situations. On Saturday, we'll have athletes from Carmel, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach, King City, Jolon, Salinas — all over the place. There's never any charge to the public."

The national organization says no one under eight years of age may compete. For those athletes between five and eight, there will be "Demos" so they can show the results of practicing.

Turf battle: Haddad, Farina square off

Chairwoman charges that director is 'against the river'

chairwoman to step down, regardless of what the FPPC may say.

"All I know is what I would do," said Haddad, a Monterey resident. "If it came to a vote, I would sit right down in the audience. Her property is subject to inundation and the dam would have flood-control features."

Farina counters: "This is not a flood-protection project, but a water-supply and drought-protection project. So to the extent my property is improved by better water supply and drought protection, yes, I benefit from the project. But that's true for everyone."

She added that any policy concerning groundwater and river pumping affects her property, but, she added, "I am one of 700-plus property owners who have been adversely affected by overpumping practices on the river," she explained.

Farina believes Haddad is not so much against her and against the dam — "but against the river...He is actually anti-river. I say this because he refuses to spend a dime on that river. His whole idea is it's OK to pump the life out of the river and then say to the property owners, 'All right, now it's your problem.'"

Haddad has cast protest votes when his fellow board members have authorized funds for routine erosion and maintenance projects on the river. He argues the best policy would be to wait until the public has its say in the authorizing election.

Turf battle?

Beneath the debate is, at least to some extent, a turf battle. Haddad and Darlene Burkleo, both elected in November 1993, are the only two directors who represent specific geographical areas.

Haddad represents Division 2, which includes Sand City and a portion of each of three cities — Monterey, Del Rey Oaks and Seaside.

Farina and the other at-large directors came to the board before the voter wards were introduced two years ago to create a more direct form of representation. Farina notes that, historically, water board candidates have often sprung from the river area because they have a vested interest in the well-being of the environment.

Haddad, noting he soon plans to conduct a survey in his ward, acknowledged the role of geography: "Yes, I would say it is true I represent a community that probably is not interested in spending any of their tax money on the Carmel River."

IS NEW BRIDGE OPENING IMMINENT?

said: "One of our engineers is there (at the bridge) looking into the possibility (of an early opening). I can't confirm Friday for you, but the bridge may be open before Mother's Day (May 14)."

RGW Construction of Fremont started round-the-clock work on April 1, carrying out an emergency project to replace the old Carmel River Bridge, which was washed away by the March 10 flood.

The contract says the project must be finished by May 21, with the firm set to receive $20,000 for each day it finishes ahead of that target date.

Where There's a Will...

By THOMAS
HART HAWLEY

Some questions you might want to ask your attorney

NOBODY, NOT even The Artful Dodger's clever attorney, is perfect. In fact, just the other day his clever attorney discovered he had screwed up.

For years, Art's Aunt Dottie has lived in a Carmel cottage Art and Ellie own. Since Dottie is as poor as a churchmouse, Art and Ellie have willed the cottage to her. Thus, if she survives them, she will always have a place to live.

The Dodgers' wills did not state upon whom the burden of estate taxes would fall. As a result, under California law, taxes would be prorated among all beneficiaries and poor Aunt Dottie would have to sell the cottage to pay her share.

Fortunately, this problem was discovered by the clever attorney during a routine review of the Dodgers' estate file. Before his second cup of coffee, he was on the phone to the Dodgers suggesting their wills be changed so the cottage will pass to Dottie free of tax.

The point is simple. Be sure to discuss with your attorney just where you want the burden of taxes to fall.

Estate planning has become very complicated. Even the cleverest attorney, on occasion, fails to ask questions, such as this one, crucial to an estate plan.

Here are some other occasionally overlooked questions you just might just want to discuss with your clever attorney:

■ What if my child dies first?

Art and Ellie have willed most of their estate to their son, Roger. If Roger dies before they do, their estate passes to Roger's children. The Dodgers' wills read this way because that is the way the standard will in their clever attorney's word processor reads.

But what of Roger's widow? The vision of the little Dodgers eating smoked salmon while their mother eats canned tuna is disturbing.

Art and Ellie may just want to give some of their estate to Roger's widow who, after all, will have the responsibility of raising their grandchildren.

■ How should I dispose of the family heirlooms?

If Art and Ellie had more than one child, they, like most folks, would probably leave their family heirlooms, memorabilia, jewelry and the like to their children equally. This often sows the seeds of future sibling warfare. ("Mother always wanted me to have Aunt Mildred's milking stool.")

It is usually not practical to list heirlooms item by item in your will. Ask your attorney about other ways to distribute these assets. For example, you could tag heirlooms with the children's initials. Or attach a letter with specific instructions to your will. Or, if the kids can't agree, designate just how the property can be divided up by lot and designate a non-family member (who, incidentally, will never forgive you) to preside over the division.

■ Should you give your spouse the right to decide who inherits your estate?

If Art wills his property to Ellie, in trust, he must state what will happen to the property on Ellie's death. Instead of having the estate pass to Roger, Art can give Ellie the right, during her lifetime, to choose how Art's estate will ultimately be distributed among Roger and the little Dodgers.

If Roger doesn't need any more money, Ellie, could leave Art's estate to Roger's grandchildren instead. And Ellie could choose which of the grandchildren should inherit. For example, she could leave a healthy amount to the grandchild who is selflessly teaching handicapped children. And little or nothing to the grandchild who dropped out of school at 14 to express himself on a Harley Davidson.

Next time: It's back to high school as we explore how Newton's laws of physics apply to estate planning.

National Day of Prayer celebrated today

By JOHN DETRO

SOMETIMES, THINGS fall together just right. For example, President Clinton set aside this day — Thursday, May 4 — as a National Day of Prayer. Concurrently, spokespersons for the Christian Science Reading Room in Carmel (on Lincoln between Fifth and Sixth) say their facility will note that presidential proclamation today by having "a special display on prayer."

Concurrently, printed paragraphs by Nelson Mandela were circulating — through the mails, hand to hand — among this immediate area's pastors, poets and lay theologians.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams
Some people aged 65 through 69 forego part of or all Social Security benefits by continuing to work and exceeding certain earning limits. In 1995 the limit is: For every three dollars earned above $11,280, one dollar is deducted from benefits. (There are no earning limits for those 70 or older). If you are nearing age 65 and plan to continue to work, discuss this with a Social Security representative. Even if you will forego benefits entirely on turning 65, you should sign up for Medicare. Waiting any longer might increase your Medicare costs.

Dr. Benjamin Spock at 91 delivered an hour-long lecture at Sarah Lawrence College in Yonkers, New York, where he had been consulting pediatrician at the college's nursery school from 1937 to 1942. His "Baby and Child Care" guide for parents has sold more than 40 million copies since 1945. He told his audience: "Encourage your children with friendly discussion, not by scolding... You have to let children bring out their own best nature and then be appreciative and: 'Respect your child but don't forget to ask for respect from your child.'"

Each year since 1952, the president of the United States has designated such a period on the first Thursday in May.

Clinton said: "I call upon every citizen of this great nation to gather together and pray, each in his or her own manner, for God's continued guidance and blessing."

Susan Wagstaff of the local Christian Science group said: "The reading room offers visitors a unique place to explore what the Bible, Mary Baker Eddy's writings and other literature have to say about the practicality of prayer in our daily lives."

And the comments by South Africa's president came from his 1994 inaugural speech.

Of darkness and light

"Our deepest fear is not that we are inadequate," Mandela said. "Our deepest fear is that we are powerful beyond measure. It is our light — not our darkness — that most frightens us."

"We ask ourselves, who am I to be brilliant, gorgeous, talented and fabulous? Actually, who are you not to be? You are a child of God. Your playing small doesn't serve the world. There's nothing enlightened about shrinking so that other people won't feel insecure around you."

"We were born to make manifest the glory of God that is within us."

"It's not just in some of us; it's in everyone. And as we let our own light shine, we unconsciously give other people permission to do the same. As we are liberated from our own fear, our presence automatically liberates others."

Padres oust Palma; King City here Friday

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

LAST-INNING rallies must have been the order of the day.

Just as the San Francisco Giants were staging one of the more incredible comebacks late Tuesday afternoon at Candlestick Park to turn back Los Angeles, so, too, was Carmel High's varsity baseball team providing late fireworks in its Mission Trail Athletic League matchup with Palma.

Carmel outfielder Chris Leonoff capped a bottom-of-the-seventh-inning rally with an RBI single to give the Padres an important 7-6 victory on the CHS diamond.

Carmel's come-from-behind win helped create a logjam at the top in the MTAL. After a day in which Alisal and Pacific Grove split a doubleheader of sorts (one result was the completion of an earlier suspended contest), and King City enjoyed a bye, the league standings show four teams all within one-half game of each other.

Alisal, traditionally one of the league's weaker teams, is on top at 8-3. The Padres, PG and King City are all 7-3.

On Friday, Carmel hosts King City, PG plays host to Robert Louis Stevenson (2-8) while upstart Alisal travels to Palma, now 4-6 after Tuesday's loss. At least two of the teams, possibly three, will advance to the Central Coast Section's post-season tournament.

In its earlier matchup with King City, the Padres, 1-3 at the time, came away with a 13-1 win.

Late heroics

For Carmel to capture its sixth straight MTAL win Tuesday, the team needed late heroics as it trailed 6-5 entering the bottom of the seventh. With the bases loaded in the seventh — Casey Christensen, Nachi Cardenas and Justin Garza all aboard via walks — and two outs, pinch-hitter Brian Christensen delivered home the tying run with a single up the middle.

Leonoff, who re-entered the game to bat for Robby Shepner, then drilled a shot off the shoulder of Palma's shortstop to plate the winning run.

"When you consider all the variables, it was a great high school baseball game," said Carmel head coach Mike Kelly. "There was a good crowd and lots of intensity."

Earlier in the game, Garza cracked his sixth home run in the last four games. He finished with two hits and three RBI.

Casey Christensen, the last of three Padres on the mound, registered the pitching win for Carmel.

Friday's home game with King City starts at 4 p.m. Kelly expects the Mustangs to send ace Brian Kirkpatrick to the hill, while the Padres' starting pitcher is undecided.

"We've got our work cut out for us," said Kelly, who noted that Kirkpatrick, a hard-throwing senior, is likely to be drafted by a major-league team when his high school playing days end.

LAST THURSDAY, Robert Louis Stevenson suffered its first setback, golfing at Pacific Grove Municipal Links against host Pacific Grove. The Pirates finished the match with a victory in strokes, but were disqualified because of a rules infraction by one of their players.

"One of our boys shot a ball into a tree, and he could see it from the ground, so he took his drop there," Coach John Powers explained. "The rules say that if you cannot identify your ball up close, you must take your drop at the original spot. It was an unfortunate mistake."

Although the technicality cost RLS the match, they still won the Mission Trail Athletic League and are co-champions with PG.

On Monday, the Pirates took part in the league championship match. Senior Scott Wang was medalist of the league (low scorer overall) with a 75. And senior Peter Hannah was close behind with a 76.

Hannah and Wang were voted to the all-league team, and the team's 394 stroke total on Monday was excellent.

"We have won NorCal with scores worse than that," said Powers. "The team shot very well."

PG's team total was 407, so they will travel with the Pirates to the regional championships this coming Monday. Four out of eight teams advance from there to the NorCal championships. According to the ever-confident Powers: "We should have no trouble advancing."

—B.F.

■ TENNIS

Chris Chatham, Stevenson's No. 1 seed and top seed in the MTAL championships, lived up to his billing Tuesday with a straight-set victory over second seed Brian Fredkin of York School to claim the MTAL singles championship. Chatham, a junior, defeated Fredkin, 6-3, 6-2, for the crown.

In the doubles section, the second seeded Pirate team of senior Johnny Kreitman and freshman Nick Carrone fulfilled their ranking as well, making it to the finals with a 6-0, 6-0 victory in the semis. But they lost to the top-seeded pair from Carmel — Huntley Austin and Sevan Zenopian — 6-3, 6-3, in the finals.

CCS action for both Carmel and RLS will begin on May 16.

—J.D.

■ SOFTBALL

The girls missed their chance to move into first place last Friday with a 5-0 loss to Notre Dame at home. But they wasted no time picking up the pieces, notching a win after the weekend.

On Tuesday, away at Gonzales, senior Ali Biondi threw a six-inning no hitter, before giving up a single in the bottom of the seventh, en route to a 6-0 shutout of the Spartans. Juniors Erica Daniels and Monica Balestrieri provided most of the Stevenson offense, Balestrieri with two hits and two RBI, Daniels with three-for-three (including a triple).

Against Notre Dame on Friday, the girls were unable to get started on offense, and ended up with only five hits. Junior Amy Barker went the distance on the mound for the Pirates, but without offensive support took the loss — the second Pirate MTAL defeat.

Stevenson, 10-2 and two games behind Notre Dame, travels to Pacific Grove on Friday, and then hosts Carmel next Tuesday in the final regular season games.

—B.F.

■ SWIMMING & DIVING

Stevenson swimmers continued to enjoy success on Tuesday with a 120-23 drubbing of the Alisal Trojans. The Pirates, whose record improved to 7-1, are experiencing their most triumphant season in years.

The Pirates won every event in the meet. Junior Chris Boehm was the only double winner — he nailed firsts in the 100 butterfly and 100 backstroke.

Senior Sunny Irvine took first in the 50 freestyle, while fellow senior Brooks Foster prevailed in the 200 free. Senior Jeff Ratto once again took first in the diving portion.

The Pirates host Carmel on Friday in their final meet before post-season competition.

■ BASEBALL

RLS has finally begun to get some breaks. After a dismal 0-8 MTAL run, the Pirates got their first league win last Friday at home against longtime rival Palma, then followed it with another win on Tuesday — an away game versus Gonzales.

On Tuesday, Stevenson needed their half of the seventh inning to seal the 10-7 victory. They scored their final three runs in the last canto.

Senior reliever Laith Agha went two-for-four with a triple and two RBI. Senior Andy Lieberman and junior Aaron Pritchard each had two doubles and two RBI as well.

Last Friday, the Pirates again needed the seventh inning to clinch their victory, this time on the defensive side of the diamond. Leading visiting Palma 8-7, the Pirates brought in senior reliever Brendan Dotson to face the Chieftain lineup. Dotson loaded the bases, but then — with two outs — struck out the final batter.

The game, which included 12 Stevenson hits, yielded solo home runs by Aaron Pritchard and sophomore winning pitcher Joey Baker — in addition to a three-for-three, two RBI performance by Agha.

—J.D.

■ TRACK & FIELD

The track season is winding down. Frosh/soph league championships were held this Tuesday, and varsity championships are scheduled for Friday.

At Tuesday's meet, bright spots were Demetrie Broxton (first in the 400), Bianca Sams (second in the 100 and 200), Evans Dowlen (second in the triple jump), Chris Jou (second in the 100 and first in the 200).

These and several other young runners already are proving themselves some of the best in the league. This, of course, bodes well for Pirate track in the future.

The Pirates were supposed to face Alisal last Thursday, but the Trojans forfeited because of transportation problems. An invitational slated for last Saturday also was canceled.

The varsity championships remain. The Lady Pirates should put on an exciting performance.

Austin, Zenopian take tennis title

THE CARMEL High School doubles team of Huntley Austin and Sevan Zenopian captured the Mission Trail Athletic League doubles championship Tuesday with a straight-set victory.

Austin and Zenopian, the tourney's No. 1 seed, downed Nick Garrone of Robert Louis Stevenson 6-3, 6-3 in the finals.

Earlier, Austin and Zenopian, who received a first-round bye, registered a 6-0, 6-0 victory.

■ GOLF

The Padre golfers finally found their stroke on Tuesday, April 25 as they avenged an early season loss to King City by coming away with a six-stroke victory at the Links at Spanish Bay.

Todd Hoskins paved the way with a 35. Other nine-hole scores: Michael Cohen, 40; Bret Hogan, 42; John Porteous, 43; and Morgan Cox, 44.

■ SWIMMING

Carmel is now 8-0 after dunking North Salinas 102-67 and Salinas 125-48 within a three-day span last week.

Against Salinas last Friday, Carmel coasted to 11 first-place finishes in as many events. Steve Bonanfant picked up a pair — in the 200 free (1:57.67) and the 500 free (5:14.03). Kent Wehde also was a two-time winner, taking the 200 individual medley (2:04.89) and the 100 breast (1:07.68).

Kyle Nichols sprinted to wins in the 50 and 100 freestyle (22.13 and 49.35, respectively), while John Rigney won big in the 100 backstroke with a 1:01.91 time.

Not to be lost was UC-Irvine bound Mike Allaire's stellar diving performance. He established a school record with a 291.30 score. For good measure, Allaire also splashed his way to a first place in the 100 butterfly (58.18).

■ TRACK & FIELD

Carmel faced the top dogs in the MTAL last Thursday as it competed versus Palma, Notre Dame and host King City. The boy's third-place finish was led by the running of B.J. Boehlge, Ryan Travaille, Ben Thompson and Jacob Saxton.

Boehlge finished first in the 100 high hurdles (16.9), closely followed by Travaille. Carmel finished second in the 440 relay, and Thompson ended third in the 440. Saxton and Travaille finished second and third, respectively, in the long jump, while Travaille also took first in the high jump with a 5-10 leap.

The girls moved to 7-0 last Thursday as they notched 69 points, compared to King City's 68 and Notre Dame's 60. Erica Larson won the long jump (16-3.25), the high jump (5-0), the 200 meter (27.1) and the 110 hurdles (17.8).

The long-distance duo of Denise Cardamone and Molly Allen sparkled in the one- and two-mile runs. Cardamone was second in the mile and first in the two-mile (13:08), while Allen was third and second, respectively.

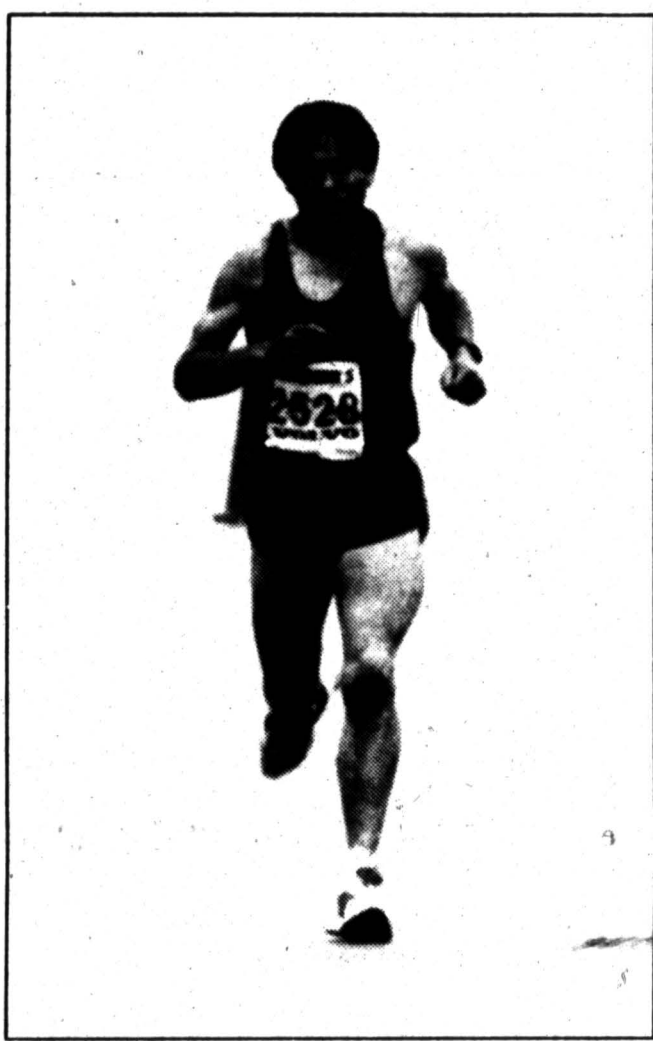

Another strong performance was turned in by Darlene Tulua as she was victorious in the discus (129-11) and the shot put (41-7.5). Tulua's earlier season toss of 141-9 is a top throw in the Central Coast Section.

At last Sunday's 10th edition of the Big Sur Marathon, Carl Thunberg of Rancho, Calif., gets a high-five from a friend for finishing 148th overall in a time of 3:19:48.

Rhode Island's Kim Goff was weary after her second straight championship.

San Francisco's Froylan Sanchez was the men's 11th-place finisher (2:41:28).

The women's second-place finisher, Jeannie Urness-Wokasch (5), earns hearty congratulations for crossing the finish line in 2:48:25, just 11 seconds behind Kim Goff, who won for her third time here.

LeVett, Mapstead have their say on Pescadero

Letters to the Editor

Letters should not exceed 350 words and are subject to editing. Letters must be typed and include name, address, telephone number and signature. Those that have previously appeared in other publications will be given last priority.

From Dennis LeVett . . .

Dear Editor:

In The Pine Cone's March 30 issue, it was reported that Tescher-LeVett was "unloading" a 1.5 acre parcel located on the Pebble Beach side of Pescadero Canyon to the Del Monte Forest Foundation rather than face a lawsuit filed by activist Noel Mapstead.

The story included this sentence: "(Noel) Mapstead said the property sale proves litigation is a powerful tool for averting development."

The following week, a response by a reader published in the letters section stated: "It is easy to see how angry Mr. LeVett must have been to have his good intentions construed as an act of weakness, where the threat of litigation was the overriding consideration."

Tescher-LeVett had given The Pine Cone a written statement concerning the bargain sale of the property before the March 30 article was published. The statement explained in some detail how Tescher-LeVett had entered negotiations with the Del Monte Forest Foundation in the summer of 1994.

It also explained the motivation for the bargain sale to the Foundation: "Our heart was never really into developing the property on either side of the line. At one point in this long and arduous approval process, we even offered the Pebble Beach side of the property to the City of Carmel as a gift..."

We thought that Carmel City Councilwoman Barbara Livingston had set the record straight in her letter in the April 6 Pine Cone: "I doubt that Tescher-LeVett were influenced to sell their property because of the threat of litigation. If this is the public perception, it is wrong...I choose to believe that Tescher-LeVett and the Del Monte Forest Foundation undertook this joint venture in order to preserve the north side of Pescadero Canyon for the greater benefit of the community."

Unfortunately, The Pine Cone persisted in its inaccurate portrayal of the facts. A subsequent story published on the front page of the April 20 Pine Cone included this sentence: "A pair of challenges was pending even before Tescher-LeVett was working on a discount purchase deal with the Del Monte Forest Foundation."

That is simply untrue. Our application was not even considered by the Monterey County Planning Commission until late November 1994, and the lawsuit was not filed until after the board of supervisors' meeting in December 1994. How could a lawsuit have been filed in the summer of 1994 over a decision which had not yet been made?

Why does The Pine Cone persist in its inaccurate reporting of the facts? If the newspaper did not believe our statement, a few simple phone calls would have assured you our statement was true.

You apparently have made a decision to express your own opinion in the guise of a news story, and create facts to support your conclusions.

From Noel Mapstead . . .

Dear Editor:

I seldom write letters to the editor since what constitutes press coverage about my activities has been mostly storytelling. Storytelling makes for mythology.

Regarding Pescadero Canyon, when the LeVetts announced they were selling their property for open space preservation, I considered this gesture to be magnanimous.

When The Pine Cone called me for a response, I proffered a quote that when it was a done deal, I would relax my democratic objections.

What I didn't say was "that litigation was a powerful tool." As one could see in the March 30 article, this phrase was not in quotations. I was asked if I thought litigation was a powerful tool, and I answered "yes."

This was answered in another context (but not to the fault of the reporter) to a side discussion we were having.

With the LeVett case, there was no knowledge of land preservation until long after objections were made at the Monterey County Planning Commission, and an appeal was made to the board of supervisors as well as to the California Coastal Commission. Consequently, litigation was the only avenue to protect the canyon.

When hearing of the agreement between LeVett and the Del Monte Forest Foundation, it never occurred to me that litigation had anything to do with it. And it would be foolish to even think so. The LeVett's decision was of their own free will.

About 10 days ago, Chris Tescher (of Tescher-LeVett) asked me to drop the litigation unconditionally, be bold and trust.

I told him that this was possible for me, since it coincided with my religion, of which I am a professed Carmelite-Taoist. Although not of the Catholic order, I have a life-long association with the Carmelite Monastery.

Unquestionably, when 19 nuns get together and pray all day and night, something wonderful is going to happen.

Farina responds to Haddad

Dear Editor:

I'm responding to two letters in the April 27 issue of The Pine Cone.

The first letter, written by Lou Haddad, accuses me of a conflict of interest on the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board because I live along the Carmel River and of violating the Brown Act. Both are serious charges and both are without merit as the author fully knows. It is particularly distressing that he chooses a public letter forum and personal attack as a method to try to gain public support to picture himself as being the only person on the board that the public should believe.

Our area faces serious water-related problems that must be addressed — problems that the public deserves to understand based on factual, accurate and unbiased information.

Mr. Haddad's techniques do nothing to provide the information the public needs, nor is his information factual, accurate and unbiased.

The second letter, written by Charity Crane, expands on the perception that only Mr. Haddad can wear a white hat, and everyone else associated with the MPWMD — staff or board — is a bad person.

The need for a water supply project that provides drought protection, restores the Carmel River environment, and provides a limited amount of water for planned growth is not a question of who is a good guy, me or him, us or them. Our water problem affects all of us.

If people want information, I strongly encourage them to become accurately informed. Information is available — and it is factual, not his version or mine. Simply contact the MPWMD at 649-4866 or visit the office in Monterey or any public library.

Read the Final Environmental Impact Report/Statement for the Monterey Peninsula Water Supply Project or the summary that has been prepared by the District.

Mr. Haddad's letters and "facts" may make him feel important, but the public is being terribly misinformed and short-changed.

Fran Farina

Haddad's being responsible

Dear Editor:

I'm responding to your April 20 front-page article titled, "Is Lou Haddad devil's advocate or nuisance?"

From what I see, Haddad, a Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) director, is simply trying to cut through a mountain of self-serving board press releases on the dam. Let me cite examples of what he is doing without trying to pin labels on him:

■ He is intent on reminding the public that interest payments for the proposed 24,000 acre-feet New Los Padres Dam over a 20-year period will be huge, approximating $106 million.

But this is only the beginning. The board recently voted 4-2 — with Haddad and Sam Karas opposed — to provide the option of extending the financing period to 30 years, which would add $60 million in interest. Sounds like local directors have caught the federal government disease.

■ Continuing attempts by the board to artificially lower the capital cost of the dam are another Haddad concern. One glaring deception is to delete $12 million in capital costs on the basis that they will be accounted for by Cal-Am. Another deception is to reduce dam costs by calculating them in 1995 dollars. The problem is that the dam can't be built with 1995 dollars.

■ He continues to insist that information be provided to the public on water supply alternatives. For example, it is not widely known the MPWMD has calculated that a retrofit of all existing toilets within the district would save 2,600 acre feet of water at a cost of roughly $9 million over 7 years.

■ In a vote on the certification of the EIR on the dam, Director Haddad dissented, noting that he couldn't vote to certify an EIR that would permit the district to "alter the lifestyle of Cachagua residents and impact their properties without their acquiescence and little regard for their concerns."

Devil's advocate? Nuisance? Neither!

Haddad is simply doing what a director should do — informing Monterey Peninsula residents on the true cost and impact of the dam.

was easy to see that if one of these vehicles was so noisy, many would be appalling.

Most people go to the beach to get away from motors and noise. It was also nerve-racking to see how close they came to the surfers in the water and that an accident could easily occur.

I was under the impression that jet skis had been banned in the Monterey Bay Marine Sanctuary, etc. I found out that the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's ban on jet skis within the Sanctuary had been appealed by the jet ski industry and set aside.

NOAA then appealed this ruling and just recently the ban was upheld. The regulation will be reinstated as soon as the written judgment from the appeal is received locally. During this period it will probably not be enforced while local officials republish the new rules. However, it is illegal from them to be launched from or landed on the beach in Carmel.

If you see anyone launching or landing such a vehicle, please call the Carmel Police Department. If you would like to see this ban enforced and upheld, please contact our congressman, Sam Farr.

This does not seem to be an appropriate or compatible activity in a marine sanctuary.

The Bronze Age?

Dear Editor:

Those of us who have survived 65 or more trips around the sun have been persuaded that we are in our Old Years. But after contemplating those loving longtimers warming that corner bench at Murphy Park, I feel that we in this region at least should think of ourselves in our Bronze Years.

The very word bronze evokes honored figures on pedestals in parks and other areas suitable for public acclaim.

So let's go on and on in our bronze years, hopefully acquiring at least honorable mention!

County gives OK to traffic signal, but turns down proposed carwash

By SUSAN BECK

PLANS TO open a carwash and mini-lube at the mouth of Carmel Valley were squelched last week by the Monterey County Planning Commission.

The commissioners did agree, however, to a traffic signal that Monterey County Public Works initially deemed necessary to accommodate the increased traffic a carwash would generate along Carmel Rancho Boulevard between Carmel Valley Road and Clock Tower Place.

L. "Mo" Orrett, chair of the commission, voted against the signal. "I was surprised by the decision," he said. "Public works is now saying the signal is needed to accommodate traffic caused by shoppers going to Albertsons. I think that we already have enough problems with traffic signals in that area without adding another one."

The commissioners did approve the developers plans to expand an open-air garden shop at Brinton's (hardware store), plus construct a separate, two-story office and retail building.

Neal Thompson, public works traffic engineer, said the signal would be installed after the construction of

This is the intersection where a proposed new traffic signal has been approved by the county planning commission.

Brinton's garden shop and the office building is completed.

According to Anthony Lombardo, attorney for Prim Partnership, it may be six months before construction at the shopping center begins. It would probably take a year from that time to complete the project, he added.

Approval from the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to install the signal would be necessary if Prim Partnership appeals the commission's decision, Thompson said. The developers had agreed to pay about $100,000 to install the signal at the entrance to the carwash if the project had been approved.

The commission unanimously decided April 26 not to approve the Prim Family Partnership's project to build a lube shop and carwash at the southern part of the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, which the firm has owned for 10 years.

The developers wanted to put the operation next to an adjacent office building, which the commissioners decided was inappropriate, according to Orrett.

Prim Partnership was advised to consider relocating the project to another part of the shopping center's property, he noted.

"I wouldn't be surprised if the commission approved the carwash if it was in a another location," Orrett added.

Lombardo said Prim Partnership has not decided whether it will appeal the commission's decision about the carwash and lube shop.

Friend of Doors' leader presents nostalgic films

■ Founder of 812 Cinema and Dream Theater shows his footage of young Pamela Morrison, Teri Garr, and Ann-Margret this week.

By IVY WESTON

HOW MANY of you long-time Peninsula residents or repeat visitors remember the old 812 Cinema?

It was located on Cannery Row in an old factory building. Opened by John Harris and his partner Alan Weber in 1970 (the two would later open the Dream Theater in Monterey), the 812 had no uniform rows of seats; instead, pillows and bean bags on the floor created an intimate space in which to socialize.

And the films there, rather than mainstream top-billed films, were what Harris terms "Hollywood films slanted to the left" — and originals made by Harris

My story of Jim Morrison would be the cool guy who sautees onions in the kitchen and talks about the Vietnam War. I never heard a harsh word from the man. Pamela was a dream spirit. They were good people.

— John Harris

himself.

What many may not know is that Harris once resided next door to The Doors' front man Jim Morrison and his wife, Pamela Courson Morrison, in Beverly Hills and became close friends with them. He was also commissioned by the couple to make films for the 1969 opening of their gallery/shop Themis.

These films will be screened Friday and Saturday, five showings each evening, at the three spirits gallery warehouse in Sand City. They capture the essence of a bygone era, of a freedom of action and thought that Harris wishes people today could experience — a less stressful and more creative existence.

Tor House Garden Party fund-raiser slated Sunday

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

JOHN DOTSON, first poet-in-residence at Robinson Jeffers Tor House on Carmel Point, wrote a handsome journal on his adventures there. The Enduring Voice was issued as a paperback by Mariposa Press (1987).

"Una loved her roses — 96 varieties — and the pale daffodils from Yeats' garden, irises 40 years old, sweet alyssum," Dotson noted. "Among the roses in the east garden is a Roman statue, Boy-on-a-Dolphin, which until 1925 stood in the London garden of John Singer Sargent."

While the wiry poet built his Hawk Tower, inspiring and inspired spouse Una made her mark with radiant plantings. The garden thrives today under the expert hands of Margot Grych, who works for Tor House Foundation.

Hawk Tower, springtime daisies, the poppies and scented geraniums, narrow stairways up through the stacked stone — old and new magics will be open to the public on Sunday when the foundation holds its yearly Garden Party from 2 until 6 p.m. (An insurance rider says youngsters under 12 cannot participate.)

"It was certainly an influential time; I'm sure that's why we ran away from the 'normal parts' of life," Harris said of the '60s and '70s. "It was a very self-productive period, and that was very accepted at the time. In the '70s at the 812, all ages wanted that experience."

"With the competition now, the Computer Age... I'm hoping things change so people can see themselves and their creativity without having to have the computer chip there to create that side of us."

The interior of the warehouse has been decorated to make viewers feel as if they've been whisked back in time to the early '70s at the 812, even if they hadn't even been alive at that time.

A small stage painted with psychedelic designs, pillows and rugs on the floor instead of chairs, a lava lamp, surround-sound speakers and the 812's original huge silver screen invite viewers to get comfortable.

Going back in time

Before moving to the Monterey Peninsula in 1969, John Harris was singing, dancing and making films in the Beverly Hills and Los Angeles area. His accomplishments included singing for the choral arranger for Johnny Matthis, Nat King Cole and Ann-Margret, and performing comedy bits on the Bob Newhart Show.

In the 60s, Verbena Street in Beverly Hills was filled with eclectic personalities. Harris lived there; Teri Garr lived down the street, and the two used to go to auditions together.

Harris met the Morrisons a few weeks after they moved in next door. One night when Harris was composing what he now terms "a strange piece of music," piano music sped up double time, there was a knock at the door. It was Jim, "and he was very interested in my music and my films," Harris said.

Although the two never composed music together, Morrison was a inspiration and sounding board for Harris' music.

"I never saw Jim jam musically. The Doors' Ray Manzarek was such a talent, Jim would write the lyrics and Ray would intuitively, instinctively play the right

'Some Shaw' staged duets show actors' versatility

By JOAN SWARTZ PAONESSA

GENTLE PLEASURES are so rare, and therefore to be treasured. For me on a recent day, it was soft rain on a Sunday afternoon, the smell of wet pine needles underfoot, then, warm and welcoming, the Indoor Forest Theatre in Carmel with its presentation of small, precious Shavian jewels to pleasure the ear, mind and soul.

REVIEW

Marcia Gambrell and Karner Benjamin, two consummately professional actors, give voice to a dozen or more characters from George Bernard Shaw's early and middle periods of comedic writing.

Two blondewood podiums, several pots of lush greenery, and a couple of chairs form the simple setting for Gambrell in a charming black gown, Benjamin in discreet attire and a six-part dramatic exposition of some of the playwright's more trenchant themes, all infused with the wit and satire for which he is justly famed.

Infectious enjoyment

Both performers display fine listening skills to match their clean and polished delivery, and the quick transformations of age and character required by a production of this type. Such an exercise is for actors self-indulgent in the best sense; they hereby give themselves license to assume roles they might not otherwise have the opportunity to play, and their enjoyment of the experience is infectious.

The balance of the male/female components within the individual, as well as between the sexes, was a leitmotif in Shaw's work from Back to Methusalem to Pygmalion and beyond. Gambrell and Benjamin explore several variations on this theme, from the unlikely pair in A Village Wooing to that most fascinating duo, Caesar and Cleopatra.

Lady Jazz will be well served by MJF's grounds admission sets and Maria Schneider clinic

LESTER YOUNG bestowed the title "Lady" upon every musician he admired — Lady Dexter (Gordon) and Lady Sweets (Edison) as well as Lady Marge (Hyams the vibist) — because he knew that any player worth serious salt serves The Muse.

Bookers who have their caps on straight also serve the music's radiant and demanding Spirit. Lady Jazz will be represented very well, come September, when Monterey Jazz Festival's grounds admission shows pull in bargain-conscious buffs. (Yes, MJF honcho

'Taste of the Nation' benefits local homeless

THE GALA Taste of the Nation, a nationwide party held to raise funds to aid the hungry, will be held locally at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Doubletree Hotel in Monterey.

Taste of the Nation is sponsored by the Share Our Strength organization, and because all administrative expenses are underwritten by American Express, 100 percent of the monies raised go to non-profit agencies nationwide that are focused on feeding the hungry. Events began last week across the country, and continue through the first week of May.

The concept for Taste of the Nation began more than 10 years ago in a handful of American cities. This year, more than 100 cities are hosting Taste of the Nation parties.

This Sunday evening, Monterey's Taste of the Nation marks its third year of successful local fundraising. The party will benefit Peninsula Outreach and the Food Bank for Monterey County.

Past successes

Monterey-area party-goers have raised substantial money for the homeless in the past — the 1993 event donated $14,000 to charitable causes. This year's event raises $30,000, as 300 guests are expected, said Honorary Chairman Ted Balestreri.

The ballroom at the Doubletree will be decorated with a Monterey County theme — part Cannery Row and Fisherman's Wharf, part Monterey "wine country." At stations throughout the room, guests can sample food and beverages to their hearts' content. "I call it grazing," explained Chairman Jim Gallivan, Food and Beverage Manager at the Doubletree. He helped launch the first Taste of the Nation, which took place in Boston in 1985.

Thirty restaurants and caterers, including Fresh Cream, The Avenue, Thai Bistro, Raffaello Carmel Restaurant, and The Grill on Ocean Avenue will donate their time and culinary delicacies. Likewise, 30 wineries and breweries, including Joullian Vineyards, Robert Talbott Vineyard and Paraiso Springs Winery, are offering tastes of their products.

Music will be provided by Dick LaSalle. An auction is also planned, offering a deluxe tour from the Seychelles to Singapore.

Worthy beneficiaries

Peninsula Outreach started up about 10 years ago, in response to the growing numbers of homeless and hungry people in our area. The organization provides hot meals six days a week in its soup kitchen at 520 Sonoma Ave. in Seaside.

The kitchen, staffed mainly by volunteers from local church groups, is operated in conjunction with various restaurants, hotels and hospitals, which donate meals to the program. The Food Bank also gives food to Outreach.

Other benefits to the community provided by Peninsula Outreach are emergency food, clothing and household items, plus counseling services. The organization also operates two shelters — one for women and children and a second three-unit facility for families. Men are offered nightly lodging, showers and dinner through the subsidiary I-HELP program.

The national Food Bank organization was begun in 1983. The Food Bank for Monterey County, located in Salinas, obtains food from a number of sources, including:

- local growers and shippers who have excess first-quality food;
- the Food Bank Exchange in Chicago, which warehouses canned and packaged goods;
- the U.S. government, which provides such items as excess dairy products and peanut butter from national subsidy programs. Remaining rations from Operation Desert Storm have also been contributed.

Through a nationwide computer network, the numerous Food Banks are able to distribute their various supplies to thousands of soup kitchens and shelters across the country.

Tickets to Monterey's Taste of the Nation are available for $60 per person, $40 of which is tax-deductible. Tickets or more information may be obtained by calling 647-2278.

The following are two recipes that will be available for your pleasure at Taste of the Nation.

GULF PRAWNS WITH TOMATO CONFIT*

(from Bradley's Harbor Front Restaurant, Monterey)

18 gulf prawns, shelled and deveined
1/2 cup fish stock
1 cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons whole-grain mustard
12 Roma tomatoes
1/2 cup olive oil
1 bunch fresh tarragon
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1/2 cup unsalted butter
Zest of one lemon, blanched

Cut off ends of tomatoes and gently squeeze out seeds. Coat tomatoes with olive oil and roast in 250 degree oven for one hour. Cool, peel and coarsely chop. Set aside.

Combine fish stock, mustard and garlic. Place in a saucepan and bring to a boil, reducing liquid by half. Add prawns and cream, reduce heat, and simmer for four minutes. Add tomato confit, tarragon leaves and lemon zest, continuing to simmer for an additional two minutes. Remove from heat and whisk in butter. Serves six people.

*At the restaurant, this dish is served with angel hair pasta and a grilled half of a Roma tomato, which is drizzled with olive oil and garnished with a tarragon sprig. At Taste of the Nation, the dish will be offered without them, according to owner Bradley Jones.

Jazz Tides: More news about upcoming MJF

Tim Jackson assembled another rare batch of sets.)

This year, out-of-arena programming gets three venues instead of the usual two — consistent popularity, you see. Costs: $20 per on the Friday night (9/15), $25 for Saturday and Sunday. The start date of ticket sales will be noted here as soon as that decision has been made at Jazz Central.

And the full festival slate will run in the Thursday column right before MJF kick-off. Right now — a rich sampling.

Garden Stage: Dick Whittington, group with killer trombonist Wayne Wallace, Roger Eddy, magical vocalist Mary Stallings, Joe Louis Walker, Maceo Parker, Eddie Marshall & New Flavor, Bay Area Grand Masters of Jazz, Sonny Simmons (must).

Night Club: Madeline Eastman, Bebop & Beyond, Ray Obiedo, Columbia Records Jazz Jam, panel on Duke Ellington, Charlie Hunter Trio (must).

New Venue: Organ Jam with Ronnie Foster and other vets (great notion), Spoken Word Jazz with the brilliant Al Young and writer friends, Maria Schneider Big Band (major composer), Schneider clinic on jazz arranging (pure gold), duo time with Nancy King and Glen Moore, Denny Zeitlin and David Friesen (wow — Denny and David's newish Concord CD is a jewel).

Where's the action?

—At this writing, there were a few tickets left for Mark Murphy at that Jazz Store beside KRML Radio in The Crossroads. Starts at 7:30 tonight. The much-admired vocalist thus makes up a gig that was flooded out in March. Call 624-6431.

—An excellent freebie looms. It'll commence at 4 p.m. Sunday in the MPC Music Hall. Guest artist Kenny Stahl (on flute) will front a quartet for the first half. Then the Old Master, Don Schamber, will lead the 24-member MPC Jazz Band's set. (Pianist Biff Smith will serve both portions, bringing along some Smith originals.)

The Pete Peterson Big Band will reissue portions of two successful albums on one. Schamber's name appears under eight of the dozen selections (as composer-arranger or arranger — kudos).

—The Scott and Peggy Brown Swing Band will open tonight at Ferrante's atop the Monterey Marriott. Scott plays crisp keyboards and bass behind his wife's remarkable voice. Saxist Claude Gilroy on tenor, Charlie DeWeiss (guitar), drummer Andy Weiss.

Cover of $5 and dancers encouraged. The Browns will alternate on Thursdays with Wally's Swing World.

—Nice note from Greg Stegeman, former Carmel Valley longtimer who's in The Four Freshmen. "We'll be appearing at San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel: May 25-28. Not in the Venetian Room, but the jazz room where Joe Williams and Joe Sample have worked. I would love to see old friends. And Freshmen fans."

—Hold everything. Jimmy Smith (this jazz organist has few peers) will be spotlighted Monday night at Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz. Shows at 7:30 and 9:30; $15 advance (Cymbaline Records in downtown Monterey) or $17 at the door.

On Friday night: the singer Pipa Pinon. Just $5 per — at the door only.

Kuumbwa announces new exhibits there by jazz photographer Lenny Bernstein and jazz-inspired painter Carole Hand. Parts of the venue's 20th anniversary celebration.

Short takes

■ SF Jazz Festival sets a fascinating June 10 concert at Masonic Auditorium — Joe Henderson and Herbie Hancock playing the music of Jobim. Call (415) 864-

■ Gerald Wilson wrote for Jimmie Lunceford, Basie, Ellington, Dizzy, Ella, Carmen, Nancy Wilson. These days he teaches at UCLA. And his big band's new CD must be called a treasure (MAMA Foundation label). Title: State Street Sweet.

One night at MJF, trumpeter Gerald and sympathetic Diz had a conversation so impassioned and personal — about the price one pays physically for playing their instrument over the long term — that I'd need Gerald's permission before writing down details.

■ The percussive and vastly inventive pianist Don Pullen has died in New Jersey at age 53. Don Lucoff of Blue Note Records gives the cause: lymphoma. (If you don't know his work, please check out Don Pullen's duo session with tenorman George Adams — and the formative work he did for Mingus in 1973 and '74.)

■ Diane Middlebrook, the Stanford prof who wrote that controversial 1992 biography of poet Anne Sexton, says she's now doing a book about jazz musician Billy Tipton.

You remember Billy. When he died in 1989, Tipton was found to be a woman. He had married five times, and kept his secret until death.

■ Doc Ricketts' Lab near Cannery Row offers the Monterey Jazz Jam (hosted by the Brian Chester Trio) on Monday evenings. Tuesdays — Swing Night with the smooth Swingmasters.

■ Jazz guitarist Joseph Lucido fronts a group on Friday nights at the Wharfside (on Wharf #1).

■ A performance special with bluesman Eric Clapton — and produced by Martin Scorsese — will be aired over PBS on May 10. The 90-minute show includes a rare club performance by Clapton at SF's Fillmore. Check local listings.

KEY LIME PIE

(Editor's Note: In last week's Pine Cone, errors were made in the "Key Lime Pie" recipe. We apologize — here's the correct version.)

The filling:

Beat together:

4 egg yolks
1 14-ounce can of condensed milk
1 teaspoon grated lime peel
1/4 cup fresh lime juice

The Crust:

1 cup grated coconut
1/2 cup ginger snap cookie crumbs
1/2 cup graham cracker crumbs
1/4 cup melted butter
1/4 teaspoon vanilla

Combine crust ingredients and press into pie pan.

Pour filling into pie crust. Bake for five minutes at 425 degrees.

APRICOT SOUFFLÉ BREAD PUDDING

(from Goodies Delicatessen in Pacific Grove)

2 loaves French bread
3 sticks butter, softened
6 cans of apricot halves (reserve 1/3 cup juice)
10 cups half & half
1 dozen eggs, beaten
3-4 cups sugar
4 drops almond extract
5 pinches salt
1 large jar apricot jam

Cut bread into 1/2-inch slices and allow to "stale" for half a day or so. Butter a large, deep baking dish. Butter one side of bread pieces and arrange, butter side down, in a cobblestone pattern on the bottom of the baking dish, filling holes with small pieces of bread. Place apricot halves over bread, and repeat layering until bread and apricots are used up, ending with a bread "roof."

Mix together half & half, eggs, sugar, almond extract and salt. Ladle over bread. Heat jar of jam and 1/3 cup apricot juice in saucepan until bubbly and spoon over soaked bread.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Place baking dish in a larger pan of water in oven for one and a half to two hours. Turn pan occasionally to allow for even browning. Serves eight to 10 people.

The chef, Charlie, suggests serving it with whipped cream and assures that it can be reheated.

Briefly Speaking

Post-show discussions set to follow Pacific Rep's 'Oleanna'

LOCAL EXPERTS in the fields of law and gender roles will lead three discussions following Pacific Repertory Theatre's performances of David Mamet's Oleanna at 7:30 p.m. this Saturday and on May 13 and 20.

Monterey Peninsula College instructor Lenore Simon, leader of the "Women and the Law" class there, facilitates the discussion along with local attorney Bill Daniels. The talk will include input from the productions director, actors and designers.

Oleanna's subject is miscommunication and strife between the sexes.

Performance Carmel slates show by San Jose Taiko troupe

JAPANESE DRUMMING company San Jose Taiko comes to Carmel under the auspices of Performance Carmel at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 13, in the Sunset Cultural Center auditorium in Carmel.

Formed in 1973 by Asian-Americans seeking an artistic expression of their experiences as third generation Japanese Americans, or sansei, San Jose Taiko makes use of the Japanese taiko, or drum, which has its origins in the daily life of common people.

San Jose Taiko's repertoire combines traditional Japanese drumming with world rhythms, including African, Balinese, Latin, Brazilian, and jazz percussion, to create new dimensions in Asian-American movement and music.

All compositions performed by the group are written or arranged by its members, all of whom participate in composing, choreographing, designing and producing costumes, and handcrafting drums.

San Jose Taiko regularly performs concerts and residencies throughout the United States, Canada and Japan.

Tickets are $12.50 and $15 and can be purchased at Sunset Center's Administrative Office or by calling 624-3996.

I Cantori tickets on sale for upcoming spring concert

ADVANCE TICKET sales are now underway for I Cantori di Carmel's May 27 and 28 Spring Concerts at the Carmel Mission.

The concert program has an Italian theme, and includes works by Cherubini, Vivaldi and Lotti and an original composition by I Cantori director Sal Ferrantelli.

The performances will be preceded by a dessert buffet and a visit with Ferrantelli.

More information: 647-8439.

May Faire at Barnyard has plenty of activities for kids

CELEBRATE THE onset of May and of hopefully better weather for our area at the May Faire Festival, slated from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at The Barnyard shopping center, located off Highway 1 at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

Maypole dancing, face painting, bubble blowing, sea otter mask- or fairy doll-making, a fashion show, hair demonstrations and free manicures are highlights of the event. Jesters and jugglers will also be on hand, as will a fairy kids can tell their wishes to.

More information: 624-8886.

Chamber music competition set Saturday; concert Sunday

THE 24TH annual Carmel Chamber Music Competition will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday; the winners perform a concert at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Both events take place in the Sunset Cultural Center auditorium and are free of charge to the public.

This competition is international in scope with groups from university music departments and conservatories in the United States and Canada competing for cash prizes.

Through its annual competition, the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula encourages young musicians to pursue chamber music as a career.

Actors Gambrell, Benjamin give impressive performances in Hell of Don Juan and Dona Ana from Man and Superman, the enchanting encounter between the practical Swiss, Bluntschli, and idealistic Raina in Arms and the Man, the meeting of Shakespeare with the Virgin Queen in The Dark Lady of the Sonnets, and that most poignant and telling of farewells, Eliza's goodbye to Henry Higgins in Pygmalion.

To paraphrase one of the playwright's characters: "Take away that voice, that face — they are not you — but leave me your feelings and ideas, for they are your soul."

Using several voices and diverse faces, Gambrell and Benjamin leave us with many souls to consider and to enjoy; gentle pleasures to be savored and remembered in quiet moments.

'Some Shaw' stages at 8 tonight, Friday and Saturday and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Indoor Forest Theatre, located at Santa Rita and Mountain View in Carmel. It runs through May 13. Tickets are $10 general, $8 students and seniors. Information/reservations: 624-1531.

Free-lance writer Joan Swartz Paonessa is a former theatrical director. She lives in Pacific Grove.

Portrait of Morrison in 'Doors' movie exploitative, friend says

Over the years, Harris said, he became closer friends with the Morrisons, and his take on Jim is the complete opposite of the Dionysian image of Jim that was created largely by the media.

"My story of Jim Morrison would be the cool guy who sautées onions in the kitchen and talks about the Vietnam War. I never heard a harsh word from the man. Pamela was a dream spirit. They were good people."

Other creative outlets

By 1968, Jim was beginning to tire of fame and he and Pamela were searching for other creative outlets. They came up with the idea for a shop/gallery next door to The Doors' studio in Beverly Hills, and to name it Themis.

Pamela had interested in Moroccan clothing and fabrics, so when Harris came up with an idea for a film of undulating tapestries to be projected on Themis' walls, Pamela was enthusiastic.

Although this film was never made, Harris made several films with the opening of Themis in mind, and they were indeed shown on opening night in Nov. 1969. Although Harris was present to show his films at the event, but he had already relocated to the Peninsula and was working on opening the 812.

The 812 closed in 1981 due to a fire and a dispute with the landlord. Harris and Weber opened the Dream Theater in 1975; Harris sold it in 1993.

The films of Themis

The three spirits warehouse event features several of the films made for the opening of Themis.

One features a very young Ann-Margret, and is accompanied by "Theme" by Iron Butterfly. This film had been made for the opening of Ann-Margret's Las Vegas nightclub act.

Portrait of Pamela is just that, a short film of Pamela Morrison — sitting in a chair by a mirror, twirling in a flowing white dress, standing in a doorway — set to The Doors' "Love Her Madly." Her natural beauty, auburn hair in a long style that's in fashion again now, and the knowledge on the audience's part that this was Jim Morrison's lady love makes watching this film a chilling, deeply moving experience.

Harris said the two were truly soul mates. "It was the strongest of connections you could ever muster. Nothing could separate them. Pamela was his rock. Jim was her rock."

Another of the films features a very young Teri Carr, chained to the Paramount Pictures gate mouthing "I love you" to the camera to the tune of The Doors' "Hello, I Love You."

Themis — short-lived

Themis had a pheasant feather ceiling and "everything [Pamela] saw that had an unusual feel," Harris said. The shop closed 28 days after its opening, because "they had their interests in other things," Harris said.

"It was a very tenuous period for them," he continued. "Jim was very unsettled with fame so he had been back to Paris to work on his poetry, and made a couple of recordings of his poems. And then I got a call from Pamela saying she found Jim dead in the bathtub [at age 27, cause of death unknown]."

Many stories of Jim and Pamela (who also died at age 27, a few years after Jim, of an unknown cause), including those told in books and movies, have upset Harris because they stray so far from the truth about how the Morrisons really were.

"I'm very opposed to the books out about them. While Oliver Stone was making The Doors [released in 1991], I sent him the film I made of Pamela so he could see what she was like."

But Stone's depiction of her came out quite differently, and The Doors, which depicted Jim as little other than a boorish drunk, was not received favorably by Harris. "It was very upsetting. I couldn't stop thinking about it after I saw it. The film touched on how they really were, but sensationalized the characters; it was so exploitative."

However, the film had its good points, Harris said. "I'm glad the young people got a glimpse at the '60s, the concert footage. It wasn't a total loss for Oliver—he can go ahead and make other films," he laughed. "I think the guy is a tremendous talent."

Current projects

Harris, now a Jack's Peak resident with his horse Rose, is currently composing music for films and trying to finish the production of his film Cannery Row Dreams, for which Ann-Margret did the narration and songs.

He also plays with his band, The Unfaithful Mariannes, every Thursday night at the London Bridge Pub, located on Fisherman's Wharf #2 in Monterey. He and two other musicians perform covers of '60s and '70s hits.

"You have to diversify or you can't make it on the Peninsula," Harris laughed.

Harris' films will be shown at 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the three spirits gallery warehouse, 361 Orange Street in Sand City. Admission to each 45-minute screening is $5. Info: 393-2787.

the maintenance of the rare property, where Jeffers lived and wrote from 1919 to 1962. Visitors will be able to climb the tower which the poet built by hand between 1920 and 1924.

Masterpiece

Stewart Brand's new book — How Buildings Learn — calls Tor House "a poem-like masterpiece (which) may express more direct intelligence per square inch than any other house in America." Going there, the poet Sherod Santos says, "is like going inside Jeffers' mind."

Tea will be served in the dining room, and music (Robert McNamara's lute and Cerita Garcia at the harp) performed. James Karman will be there, signing copies of the new paperback edition of his biography Robinson Jeffers — Poet of California.

Sharon Lovejoy has donated signed copies of her latest book. Books of poems by Jeffers will be available along with such gift items as live plants and potpourri made from flowers grown in the Tor House garden.

Guides will offer details of Robin and Una's everyday life during the 1920s as they raised their twin sons. They'll also read aloud some of the poet's most famous work.

Dotson again: "Living room. Shadows play on the worn Persian rug; outside the window rose leaves stir in the breeze. Sunlight penetrates all the more such customarily dark places."

It's there — Tor House, the totality — waiting for Sunday's annual celebration.

BE KIND TO ANIMALS - SPAY OR NEUTER YOUR PET

May 7-13 has been designated nationally as Be Kind to Animals Week. If your family is ready to adopt a pet, please consider one of the many homeless animals sheltered by your SPCA. The decision to bring an animal into the household should involve every member of the family, and the animal should never be a surprise to a child or other family member. Each year The SPCA of Monterey County accepts more than 7,500 lost, abandoned or unwanted animals. One of those animals may be the life-long companion you've been looking for!

Spring is the time when thousands of unwanted kittens & puppies are born. Forty-five kittens & 15 puppies are born for every human born in the US. There simply aren't enough homes for them all. Spaying & neutering pets prevents many unwanted births & is the most effective way to deal with the pet overpopulation problem. Additionally, spaying/neutering prevents many cancers in dogs & cats.

The SPCA operates two low-cost, spay/neuter clinics - one at The SPCA and one in Greenfield. For more information, call 373-2631, ext. 218.

NOTE: Animals pictured are subject to prior adoption or return to owner/companion. Adoptions are to qualified homes only. If these animals have been adopted, there are other adorable animals available... come on out! AND, PLEASE, HAVE YOUR PETS SPAYED OR NEUTERED

We make a donation to The SPCA the first time you use our service.

'First Thursday' art walk debut last month was success; second is tonight

SEVERAL OF Pacific Grove's art galleries will remain open late tonight for First Thursday, a monthly art and music walk.

three spirits gallery owner Susan Collins debuted First Thursday last month, and the good turnout prompted her to make it a monthly event.

Her idea for the First Thursday came to her after vacationing in Seattle and Portland, Ore. In both cities, art galleries stay open late the first Thursday of each month.

Pacific Grove's First Thursday begins at 4:30 p.m. with a "Jazz Happy Hour" at El Cocodrilo restaurant, located on Lighthouse Ave. The happy hour goes on until 6:30 p.m.

From 6 to 9 p.m., pick up a map at El Cocodrilo or any of the following locations, and stroll the galleries, all of which are located on Lighthouse or just a short jaunt up or down a side street.

Participating galleries include Artists Forum Gallery, Claypoole-Freese Gallery, Enyart Gallery, Hawk Fine Art, Lou Roman Impressions, Pacific Grove Art Center, Raven In the Grove, Sally Russell, three spirits gallery, Vandon Collection, and the Vehicle Gallery.

Several restaurants are featuring live acoustic music during the event. These include Bookworks, Caravali Pacific Grove coffeehouse, Goodies Delicatessen, and Chili Great Chili.

P.C. Juice & Java hosts an open mike jam from 7:30 to 10 p.m., and after the art walk, the musicians will congregate there for a jam of their own.

More information: 649-6233.

Look of the West

'Shoot'n the Bull' by Nelson Boren is part of a new exhibit of Western art at Big Horn Galleries. The reception will coincide with the Carmel Art Festival.

New Big Horn Galleries show features more than 100 artists

"THE CONTEMPORARY West," a group exhibition and sale of 17 artists' works, opens Monday at Big Horn Galleries, located at 26390 Carmel Rancho Lane in Carmel.

Represented artists include Buckeye Blake, Donna Howell-Sickles, Gary Morton, Nelson Boren, Albert Dreher, Stan Hughes, Doug Hyde, Orelan Joe, Sr., Mike Larsen, Gordon McConnell, Kim Means, Walter Piehl, Larry Pirnie, Howard Post, Charles Ringer, Bill Schenck and Bob Seabeck. The show will feature more than

100 new works of art, done in a style that has recently been dubbed "The New West."

Painting demonstrations, talks from participating artists about their art and the working cowboy, and "New West" style furniture presentations are for May 19 and 20 to coincide with the annual Carmel Art Festival. A reception will be held from 5 to 8 p.m. May 20.

The exhibition continues through June 6. More information: 625-2288.

First-time home credit program appears in jeopardy

IT TOOK nearly a decade for California cities to give first-time home buyers a federal income tax credit break.

And now — much to everyone's surprise — an obscure state commission has decided it wants to do away with the tax credit.

The California Debt Allocation Committee is considering this month a proposal to end about 80 percent of the funding for the popular Mortgage Credit Certificate (MCC) program.

Distributed by the state, the federal income tax credit is available to home buyers who obtain a mortgage from a private lender. The amount of the credit is tied to a local formula that every city must follow.

The credit reduces the borrower's federal tax liability by an amount tied to the amount of the annual mortgage interest. For example, a home buyer who purchases a home for $100,000, puts $20,000 down and obtains a 7.5 percent loan for $80,000 can qualify for an annual credit of about $1,275.

The home buyer receives a credit of 20 percent of the annual interest paid on the mortgage. This is over and above the mortgage interest deductions.

"Thousands of home buyers won't be able to buy a house if the state stops this program," said Jim Hunt, housing administrator for San Diego County. "This program is simple. It is costing us very little in administrative overhead because the tax benefit goes directly to the home buyer."

The San Diego MCC program has helped 120 home buyers in its first four months of operation, which began Jan. 1 1995. Santa Clara, Sacramento and Alameda have benefited the most from MCCs.

According to federal law, each state has a ceiling on how much in federal tax credits it can approve. This amount can be used for issuing housing bonds, or for giving tax credits directly to first-time home buyers.

Charged with allocating the federal tax credit to California cities, the Debt Allocation Committee concluded at a February meeting that the state wasn't getting as much out of the tax credit as it could by issuing housing bonds.

Since it was enacted 10 years ago, the MCC program has had a rocky history as Congress could never decide whether to keep the program on the books. Consequently, many cities shunned offering the tax credit because it was often entangled in federal and state bureaucratic rule-making.

But changes to federal tax laws two years ago gave the program more certainty, giving home buyers and local housing markets a boost.

Cities throughout the state began to realize that the tax credit was a cost-effective way of prompting homeownership among low-and moderate-income families, who otherwise couldn't afford to buy a home.

Mitchell Group adds new agents: McGowan, Grace

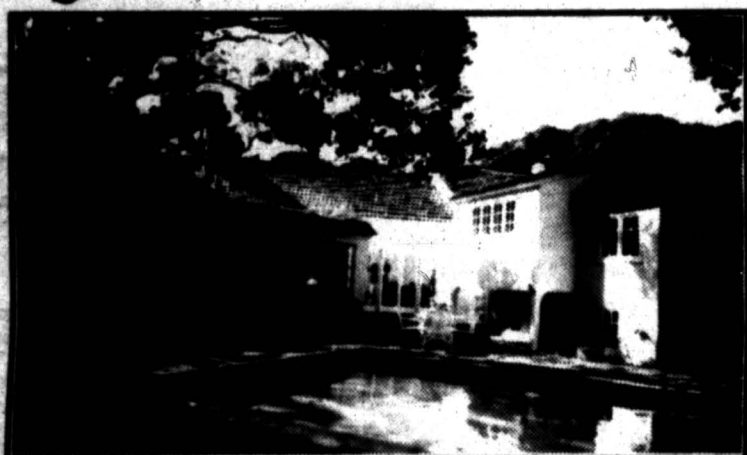

THE MITCHELL group, a Carmel-based real estate agency, has announced the additions of two new agents. Here's a closer look:

■ Terry McGowan, formerly of Fox & Carskadon, has joined The Mitchell Group. Prior to his tenure at Fox & Carskadon, McGowan owned a retail business in Monterey for 20 years. He moved to the peninsula 20 years ago.

■ Jean Grace, former two-term mayor of Carmel, is a new residential agent for the agency. The 18-year resident of Carmel received her real estate license in 1992.

The Mitchell Group offices are located at Dolores and Seventh in downtown Carmel and at 200 Clock Tower Place in the mouth of the valley. Both McGowan and Grace will be working out of the downtown Carmel office.

Can this be Carmel?

A gracious traditional home south of Carmel's Ocean Avenue with a beautiful swimming pool in the rear garden. There's a big, old fashioned kitchen where your guests will gather...a dining room with corner fireplace and hardwood floors...and a den/office with its own fireplace. You'll want to see this home with four bedrooms, four bathrooms, and a floor plan that's absolutely terrific for guests or family. $1,299,000.

POINT LOBOS VIEWS - We look forward to showing you this remodeled home in Carmel with fantastic views of Point Lobos and Carmel Bay from the living room, master bedroom and kitchen. Altogether there are three bedrooms, one on the main floor and two upstairs. An expansive tiled deck off the living room takes full advantage of the view. It has a two-car garage with skylights and room for a workshop. $490,000.

YOU CHOOSE THE COLORS for the custom dream home designed by Ray Parks under construction on Carmel Point — only 1/2 block to the water, with views of the ocean and Robinson Jeffers Hawk Tower. Traditional Carmel styled home reflects old world charm but with all the modern top-of-the-line touches. Large 2-story living room with fireplace, bay window, beamed ceilings and French doors that open onto patio. Estimated completion is mid-summer...$1,700,000.

Tax credit for first-time buyers in question using the credit has increased more than seven-fold. Just six years ago, $146 million in federal tax credits were issued in California. Last year, more than $1 billion was gobbled up, aiding an estimated 10,000 home buyers in the state.

Families must be first-time home buyers and the price of the house must fall within certain limits to qualify for the tax credit. The cost of the house cannot exceed 90 percent of the average area purchase price.

Because MCCs are designed to help middle-income home buyers, the program places a ceiling on the income an eligible buyer can earn. Generally, the home buyer's income may not exceed $50,000 a year. However, higher cost areas in the state have higher income thresholds.

In the past, critics have charged that the MCC program offers a lucrative tax credit to home buyers who may have been able to get into the real estate market anyway. They also have argued that such subsidies should be directed toward people who need more financial assistance.

Despite those arguments, several studies have found that the MCC program is often a boost for people to get into the real estate market, who would otherwise not be able to.

PROFESSIONAL FULL SERVICE MANAGEMENT FOR YOUR PROPERTY

Property Management means more than collecting a fee for handing out keys and collecting rents. It is the careful matching of individual needs and taste to a home that will fulfill those needs. It is conveying the feeling of WELCOME HOME for each renter, and the feeling of security by homeowners that their property is receiving the best possible care and attention to detail.

CARMEL

SPARKLING IN HATTON FIELDS! One of the most attractive homes in this desired area. Of approximately 2000 sq. ft., the bright and cheerful residence is located on a 1/4-acre park-like setting. The interior features large rooms and a gracious flow, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, fireplace & oversized garage. A huge brick patio & garden add color to this valley-view home in move-in condition. $489,000.

POINT LOBOS VIEWS! South of Ocean Avenue, a large, bright home freshly painted & newly carpeted. Enhanced by lots of delightful features, including a private patio, high-beamed ceilings, French doors, paned windows, hardwood floors, bookcases, and even an up-to-date furnace. A marvelous 3-bedroom, 2-1/2 bath home with views of Point Lobos from the roof deck. In walk-to-town area. $735,000.

"OCEAN BREEZES"! With more square footage than you would expect in this ideal south-of-Ocean-Avenue area, "Ocean Breezes," offers sunset views and melodic sounds of the ocean, light & airy spaces, 3 bedrooms and 3 baths, newly redesigned with casual elegance. This Carmel jewel, set amid lush greenery with pillared gates, is just steps from town and a short stroll to the white sands of Carmel Beach. $782,000.

OWNER EXTREMELY MOTIVATED! Atop a high peak, this 4-bedroom, 2-1/2-bath home on 10 acres — captures 360-degree views of rolling hills & valleys. Versatility is the key feature of this fine home, offering isolation from traffic and the opportunity to acquire horse property or that special getaway home. $329,000.

SUNRISE...SUNSET! Forever views from custom southwest style 3-bedroom, 3-bath home in one of the Valley's most desirable, gated residential communities. Ideally sited. Spacious open plan, high timbered ceilings with distinctive design, gourmet kitchen. $849,000.

MONTEREY

FOREST VIEWS! Generous use of windows and a large deck opening to views of the forest add to the appeal of this 3-bedroom, 2-bath home. In move-in condition, there is a large kitchen with storage, a generous family room opening to the deck and a two-car carport. A cul-de-sac property in the desired Monte Vista area. $245,000.

GREAT FLOOR PLAN! A like-new property completely remodeled three years ago & offering ocean views from the deck off the master suite. Spacious living room with fireplace, formal dining & ample kitchen. Three bedrooms & 3 baths. In a quiet neighborhood. $329,500.

PEBBLE BEACH

ADJOINING THE 2ND FAIRWAY! Of MPCC's Shore Course, this well-located home awaits your decorating ideas. The living room is extra-large & has a fireplace. Fairway scenes are viewed from the dining room, living room & second bedroom. Gated courtyard entry. Total of 3 bedrooms & 2-1/2 baths. Two-car garage. A probate sale home of about 1875 sq. ft. $465,000.

REDUCED $200,000! Overlooking sweeping sea, Point Lobos & fairway views, a charming and elegant Mediterranean villa built by Hugh Comstock. Situated high on a hill on 2+ prime acres behind security gates. Featuring a Carmel-stone exterior & tile roof, it boasts 5 delightful bedroom suites, living room with vaulted ceiling, large dining room with fireplace, spacious family room and cozy tower study. Now $2,250,000.

MEDITERRANEAN MASTERPIECE! Extraordinary craftsmanship abounds from this dramatic estate home on one-gated landscaped acres near Pebble Beach Golf Links & RLS School. There is a "great room" family area, 4 fireplaces, den, 4-bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths plus exercise room & gourmet kitchen. Spectacular pool area & guest suite over a 4-car garage. Now $1,990,000.
